Fire Traps Swimmers

By TED LIPPMAN

The two tank cars of butane gas exploded on a railroad trestle above a recreation area near Meldrim Sunday afternoon, spreading a wave of flames over scores of picnickers, swimmers, and fishermen.

At least 17 persons were killed in the inferno. The injured were being counted in the dozens.

Flames from the exploding cars flashed into the swimming area of the Ogeechee River 25 feet below the wooden trestle, then surged up and across the river into neighboring beach areas, woods and swamps.

Many of the victims were burned to death in the water, where they were trapped swimming or fishing or boating. They had virtually no warning.

SOME TRIED TO FLEE

Some were overtaken by the raging flames as they attempted to run from the burning beach. Others were killed as they bolted out of the water. Some were burned to death as they sat in automobiles parked near the beach. One witness counted nine autos charred by the flames, some with their inhabitants burnt beyond recognition.

An estimated 75 to 100 were injured. Fifteen were hospitalized.

Hospitals in Savannah rushed all available ambulances to the scene. Other ambulances sped in from smaller towns in the coastal area.

Helicopters from Hunter Air Force Base at Savannah, Glynn Naval Station at Brunswick and the Marine base at Beaufort, S.C., were pressed into service. Some were used to carry victims from the center of the disaster to nearby highways, where ambulances rushed them to hospitals in Savannah. Some helicopters were carrying badly burned victims from the scene to hospitals. They landed on lawns in Savannah, discharged their grisly human cargo, returned to the scene.

CROWD ENJOYING WATER

The gruesome accident occurred at about 4:10 p.m. The trestle crosses the Ogeechee about 18 miles northwest of Savannah, near Meldrim, an Effingham County town of only 300 residents.

The hundreds of picnickers enjoying the green and cooling waters of the river had come from all around the area. They sought relief from 96-degree summer heat.

The wooden trestle runs from east to west, bisecting the recreation area along the east bank of the river. North of the trestle the area is mostly devoted to swimmers. To the south the fishermen, many in boats, take over the river.

Fire Caught Some Far From Pool

By BILL SHIPP

"We couldn't see anybody when we first got there. There was nothing but fire everywhere. It would have been suicide to try to get through the fire. . . . After the blaze went down, we started finding bodies. One was 500 yards from the explosion."

That's how Robert W. Morris of Meldrim described the scene of the tragedy. Morris was among the first rescuers to reach the scene.

He told The Constitution:

"It was easy to see what happened. That car toppled off into the water, and everybody in swimming tried to jump out and run into the woods. But that fire just overtook them."

"Some of the people never made it out of the pool. And some that did got as far as 500 yards before the fire overtook them."

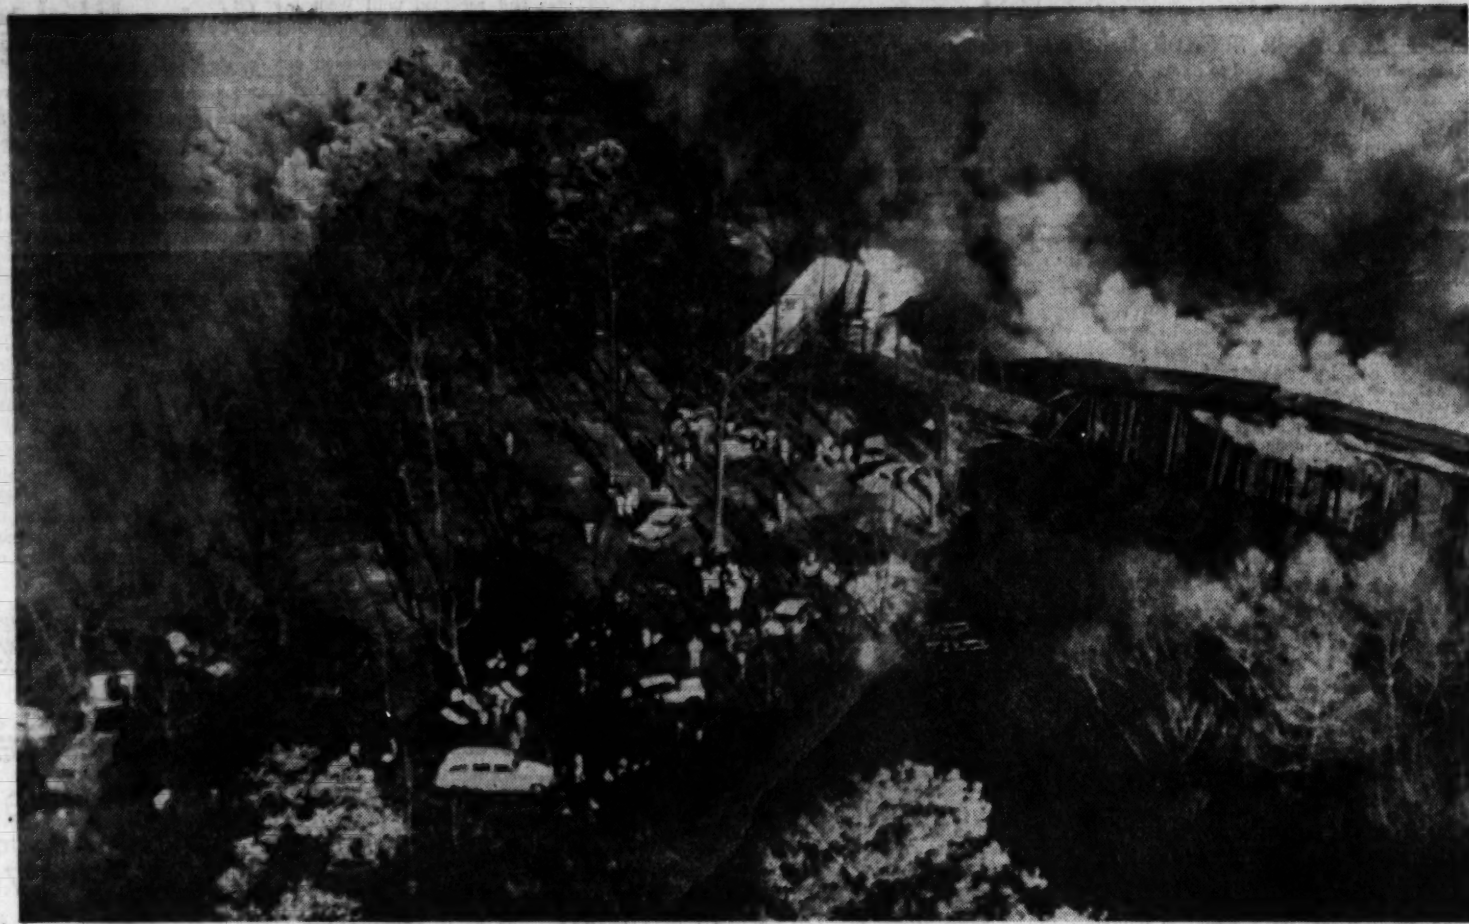

"I never saw so much fire. Everything was on fire. The bridge and the woods. Even the water was on fire."

"I don't know how many people were killed. I counted about 15. I knew some of the people real well, but I don't think it's right to give out their names until we give out all of the names at once."

Morris said he and his son were among a score of rescuers who were first to arrive at the scene.

"Right after we got there, the helicopters and ambulances start-

New Inflation Peril Seen by Ike Aides

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's anti-inflation committee notified him Sunday that reviving inflationary forces have brought the country to a "critical juncture."

Prompt government action is required, it said.

This was the first report from the committee, headed by Vice President Richard M. Nixon and made up largely of Cabinet members.

Congress, it said, must take immediate three minimum steps to avert "the serious risk of price increases."

The steps: 1. achieve a budget balance, 2. remove the interest ceiling on government bonds, to avoid the equivalent of "greenback" financing, 3. make price stability, by law, "an explicit goal of federal economic policy."

The committee foresaw a budget surplus and the possibility of tax reform "soon" — including some unexpected rate reductions to foster economic growth—if spending is held to 77 billion dollars in the year starting July 1.

"If the line can be held on the administration's budget, tax revenues should more than meet current expenditures," the committee report said.

"This will provide the margin needed to provide for reduction in the debt and absorb any temporary losses of revenue caused by shifting to rates which, by improving incentives, will enlarge the tax base."

The report carried only one direct reference to the deadlocked steel wage negotiations. It listed steel as one of several industries whose settlements this year could bring "wage increases of such

Worker Shuts Valve, Averts Gas Disaster

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — More than 100 explosions in a propane gas-bottling warehouse rocked a wide area near here Sunday but the quick thinking of a 25-year-old employee averted disaster.

The employee, William Buskey, escaped with second-degree burns of the right arm and singed hair.

Buskey closed a valve to a main storage tank at the Quick Flame Gas Corp. before the explosions occurred.

"Had it not been for the quick thinking of Bill Buskey in shutting off the valve," said George Ryan, owner-distributor, "the plant would have gone."

Fiery Gas Blast Rivals State's Worst Disasters

Georgia disasters which have taken a heavy death toll in the past include:

- Great Atlanta fire of May 21, 1917, which destroyed 1,938 homes, burned 73 blocks and left 6,000 persons homeless.
- Rockmart train crash, Dec. 24, 1926—19 killed, 65 injured.
- Gainesville tornado, April 6, 1936—210 killed, 1,000 injured.
- Atlanta's Winecoff Hotel fire, Dec. 7, 1946—119 dead.
- Warner Robins tornado, April 30, 1953—19 killed, 300 injured.

Hospital Scenes Tell Blast Grief

By JAMES SHEPPARD
Constitution Staff Writer

SAVANNAH—Pain and death, tears and screams, blood and burns—this was the ugly horror at Savannah hospitals where the Meldrim rail disaster victims were brought Sunday night.

A pall hung heavy over the emergency rooms as sorrowful scenes unfolded like that of J. B. Hanna, a boilermaker from Marlow, who had the task of informing a teen-age girl her mother and father were dead.

"No! No! No!" cried Helen Dixon, returning home shortly before midnight from an outing at Tybee Beach to learn that her parents were among those killed when a Seaboard Air Line freight spilled its cars across a trestle near suburban Meldrim. The exploding of butane gas engulfed Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dixon as they sat fishing near the trestle on the banks of the Ogeechee River.

Relatives' tense faces mirrored the shock and grief of the rail disaster as the kin of the dead and injured came here to share the suffering of their loved ones—or to claim a body.

In the confusion of the disaster, it was not immediately known the number of dead and injured. Coroner Harold M. Smith said 17 persons were believed dead, but he emphasized that only eight bodies had been identified:

Julian Beasley, 21; his wife, Reba, 20; their daughter Linda Jean, about two months old; Jimmy Anderson, 15; L. B. Lane, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dixon, and Teddy Barnes, 18 months.

The dead and injured were brought to Candler, Memorial and St. Joseph hospitals. As more casualties became fatalities from burns from the flaming gas or from severe laceration from flying shrapnel, ambulances con-

WEST MUST COUNTER, HARRIMAN SAYS

Textile-Rich Tadzhikistan Proving Potent Asia Lure

Many in the West forget that the Soviet Union is not a vast, single-faceted nation. It is composed of many races and geographical units. In this latest of a series of reports, Harriman, ex-ambassador to Russia and Great Britain, tells what he found in Tadzhikistan, U.S.S.R.

STALINABAD — "Americans have never even heard of our republic," Prime Minister Dodozhov of Tadzhikistan complained to me.

Yet the Tadzhik state—one of the 16 republics of the Soviet Union—provides a formidable example of how the Soviet dictatorship has brought about rapid social and economic development of a backward country by centrally controlled planning and direction.

A generation ago, this capital of Tadzhikistan was a typical Central Asian village of only a few thousand inhabitants living chiefly in mud huts without sanitation, water system, hospitals or even schools. After smashing the feudal system and the archaic customs then prevailing, the central Soviet government invested heavily in the development of the area's public education and health, its agriculture and industry.

Today Stalinabad is a flourishing town of 200,000 and the republic itself with 2,000,000 inhabitants is facing in these areas.

Musings After Strauss Case

In Charles Dickens' "American Notes," written in 1843, one may read:

"It is an essential part of every national character to pique itself upon its faults, and to deduce tokens of its virtue or its wisdom from their very exaggeration. One great blemish in the popular mind of America, and the prolific parent of an innumerable brood of evil, is universal distrust. Yet, the American citizen plumes himself upon this spirit, even when he is sufficiently dispassionate to perceive the ruin it works; and will often adduce it, in spite of his own reason, as an instance of the great sagacity and acuteness of the people, and their superior shrewdness and independence."

"You carry," says the stranger, "this jealousy and distrust into every transaction of public life. By repelling worthy men from your legislative assemblies, it has bred up a class of candidates for the suffrage, who, in their every act, disgrace your institutions and your people's choice. It has rendered you so fickle, and so given to change, that your inconstancy has passed into a proverb; for you no sooner set up an idol firmly than you are sure to put it down and dash it into fragments; and thus, because, directly you reward a benefactor, or a public servant, you distrust him, merely because he is rewarded; and immediately apply yourselves to find out, either that you have been too bountiful in your acknowledgments, or he remiss in his deserts."

High Place

"Any man who attains a high place among you, from the President downward, may date his downfall from that moment; for any printed lie that any notorious villain pens, although it militate directly against the character and conduct of a life, appeals at once to your distrust, and is believed. . . . Is this well, think you, or likely to elevate the character of the governors or the governed among you?"

It is, as Dickens found, a part of our attitude to carry jealousy, mistrust and malicious gossip into our political and public life. We seem actually eager to believe something evil.

These persons see a "fix" in every act; an "angle" to every decision.

The fact there so often is proves only what Dickens noted long ago—that our attitude "breeds up" the sort of person who is willing to endure all that, or to practice it, to obtain the majority of votes.

It explains why, too, there are not more so-called "good men," who offer for office.

In our political system there must be the willingness of honest men to "take it." The corruptionists exploit it.

Price To Pay

The man who wants to be of service must figure in abuse as part of the price we must pay to maintain our system.

Still, we can reduce that abuse.

We can destroy it by standing up to be counted when there is criticism and abuse of men in whom we believe. Too often there is a willingness to let able and honest public officials stand alone when the shell fire of smear attacks begin.

It is remarkable how Dickens caught, in so short a span of time, this ugly side of our system. It is especially true of our presidents. Andrew Jackson fought two duels and killed one man because of slander against his wife.

Herter Report Lies, Gromyko Charges

Red Diplomat Denies Plan To 'Swallow West Berlin'

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko said Sunday that statements made by Secretary of State Christian Herter in his report to the American people on the Big Four Geneva conference "do not contain a single strain of truth."

He also charged in a statement that stressed Russia's unyielding position on Berlin that the Western powers planned the three-week recess at the Geneva conference in advance and deliberately sought an excuse to get it.

However, he said he thought the talks did some good.

'MUST PAVE WAY'

Gromyko said the United States, Britain and France must "give up their unrealistic conceptions" to pave the way for a solution of the Berlin crisis.

In a 15-page statement on the Geneva conference, Gromyko referred to the "strange assertions" made by Herter in his radio-television report to Americans that Russia intended "to swallow West Berlin and deprive its residents of freedom."

"Such arguments do not contain a single strain of truth and can in no way testify to the desire of objectively shedding light on the position of the Soviet Union," Gromyko said.

He reiterated the Soviet denials that the proposals on Berlin submitted at Geneva were "ultimatums."

He said the proposals proved that Russia had no intention to make "unilateral solutions of the question of the rights of the Western powers in Berlin" either now or after an agreed period in any interim agreement. The Soviets have demanded that the Allies get out of Berlin in 18 months.

Gromyko said that the Soviet Union "shares to a considerable degree the appraisal of the prospects" of the conference by British Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd "who spoke about the possibility of the success of the talks."

ASKS REAPPRAISAL

"There are initial points which make us hope for the positive conclusion of the work of the Geneva conference," the Soviet minister said.

"We would like to believe," Gromyko added, "that the governments of the Western powers will take advantage of the intermission in the work of the Geneva conference...to appraise the Soviet proposals more soundly, give up their unrealistic conceptions which make it difficult to achieve agreement and on their part start to prepare an agreement which would make the situation in Berlin healthier and open the road to peaceful settlement with Germany."

He gave no indication that the Soviet Union would make any compromises to match those he demanded from the West.

Trail of 9 on 'Ghost' Plane Points to Death in Desert

WIESBADEN, Germany (AP)—A trail of markers found in the Libyan Desert pointed Sunday to a trek to death by the nine-man crew of an American bomber which crashed mysteriously in World War II.

A search team informed U. S. Air Force headquarters here it is going to investigate a report that bodies were found several miles beyond where the trail ended. It said there was hope the bodies of the fliers may soon be found.

Some 200 square miles of the desert have been combed for the remains since the almost undamaged B24 Liberator was found on hard-packed sand deep in the desert by a team of British oil geologists earlier this year.

The Benghazi-based bomber, named "Lady Be Good," apparently had made a belly-landing. It had been on its return from a bombing raid against Naples, Italy, April 3, 1943, according to an entry in its logbook. The logbook, flight gear, fatigue clothing and full water jugs were still in their original places inside the plane when it was found by the geologists.

TEAM MAKES SEARCH

The Air Force said the discovery presented one of the greatest mysteries in aviation history. A U. S. Army mortar team, including Capt. Myron D. Fuller and supported by an oil exploration team, undertook a three-week search of the desert this month.

They found no bodies but the search led to the marker trail which began about 20 miles north of the wrecked plane and continued for another 24 miles northward before ending at a crossing of old desert tracks.

The search team said this indicated the crew members bailed out from the bomber and started the trek together after making contact with each other, possibly by pistol shots.

ALL POINTED NORTH

The marker trail was made of boots, parachutes and other flight gear. Each item placed as a marker was carefully pointed north. After more than 16 years they were found just as they had been left, weighted down with small stones and mostly intact.

The tracks where the trail ended were made by five Italian vehicles which crossed the desert during the war, according to information gleaned in Benghazi, 440 miles north of the crash scene. These reports said three of the cars stalled and were abandoned while two made it to the coast.

BODIES NEAR CARS

These reports say that the remains of about 10 persons lie near the abandoned vehicles. Up until now, it had been assumed they were those of Italian soldiers, but the mortar team told headquarters that they could just as well be those of the American bomber crew still carried in U. S. records as missing in action.

Congress Readies Early Exit for 4th

By ALLEN DRURY

(Copyright 1959 by the New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—Congress this week plans to tidy up some routine governmental business and knock off early for the Fourth of July.

The foreign aid authorization and the regular departmental appropriations will occupy the Senate. The House will also work on appropriations. Both chambers are expected to pass on Tuesday a continuing resolution providing carry-over funds for any departments whose appropriations have not been completed on that day, the end of the 1959 fiscal year.

The aid authorization, as approved by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, will come to the Senate floor providing $4,164,000,000 to carry the Mutual Security program through fiscal 1960. This figure differs from the $3,929,995,000 approved by the House and is $225,000,000 more than President Eisenhower requested.

EARLY HOLIDAY

Both chambers are planning to start the holiday weekend early, with the Senate aiming for a Thursday adjournment and the House hoping to conclude work on Wednesday.

A small handful of congressional leaders is expected to stay in town for ceremonies Saturday at which President Eisenhower will lay the cornerstone for the new east front extension of the capitol. The extension was a pet project of Rep. Rayburn of Texas, Speaker of the House.

Sunday's congressional comments were, as usual in recent weeks, devoted largely to the budget issue.

California's two senators, Republican Kuchel and Democrat Engle, disputed on a television program for KNXT, Los Angeles, whether the administration or the Democratic Congress was being more sensible about spending.

WON'T EXCEED BUDGET

Sen. Kuchel said he thought the President had created a situation, by the use of the veto, in which "a Republican President and a Congress controlled by the Democratic party are going to have to get together and give and take in order to make progress for the country."

Sen. Engle countered that the Democrats were going to stay within the President's $77 billion budget figure for fiscal 1960 but were "going to adjust the priorities inside of that budget to some extent."

Engle said he too felt there perhaps should be "a little less" foreign aid, "which in our opinion, is getting out of hand." He said the Democrats were "trying to get some legislation through of a constructive nature for the benefit of the American people."

Steel Talks To Step Up Wednesday

Relaxed Session Agrees on That

NEW YORK (UPI)—Steel wage negotiations were resumed Sunday without the pressure of an immediate strike threat. Quick agreement was reached to put the talks on a stepped-up schedule.

The bargaining got underway again in a more relaxed atmosphere following President Eisenhower's personal intervention Saturday which brought a two-week extension of a strike deadline from midnight Tuesday until midnight, June 14.

The two top-level four-man negotiating teams met for 75 minutes and recessed until Wednesday morning to allow time to take care of technical details in connection with the extension of union contracts with the 12 major steel companies and "to negotiate similar extensions with some 70 additional steel companies not represented in these negotiations," a joint industry-union statement said.

"The conferences will resume then on a stepped-up schedule with both morning and afternoon meetings scheduled for each day until further notice," the statement said.

"When I left, the fire was still burning, and it didn't look like they were making too much headway in getting it out. My boy is out there still helping, and I'm going back."

"I guess it'll take us all night to get this thing straightened out. I never saw anything like this. It just stunned me."

2-Month Drought Ends in Denmark

COPENHAGEN (UPI)—A light rain fell on Denmark Sunday, ending a two-month drought described as the worst in 20 years. It came too late, however, to help thousands of farmers whose crops had been almost destroyed. But the rain was welcomed since it could prevent the situation from growing worse and at least bring water supplies out of the danger zone.

WHERE'LL AX FALL NEXT?

Long Rests, Hints At More Ousters

WINNFELD, La. (AP)—Earl Kemp Long, Louisiana's trouble-beset governor, whiled away the hours Sunday at his beloved farm and had the state wondering where his political vengeance might strike next.

The 63-year-old governor sped to Winnfield Saturday from the motel in Covington where he had set up temporary headquarters. He told newsmen before leaving Covington, 200 miles southeast of Winnfield, he would return Sunday night, but changed his mind and decided to stay at the farm at least until Monday morning.

Sponsor Aims Doubts on States Rights

WASHINGTON (AP)—The chief Senate sponsor of a House-passed states' rights bill aimed at the U. S. Supreme Court indicated Sunday his hopes for its enactment this year have lessened.

"It may be that we can't get it out of committee this year," Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark) said. "We may have to do more work on it and let it go over until next year."

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D-NC), one of 30 senators who joined McClellan in offering the bill, also said in a separate interview that he thinks "the climate is less favorable than last year."

The Senate defeated the bill 41-40 last year in a bitter battle over several measures designed to overcome the effect of recent Supreme Court decisions. None of the legislation was passed.

Long set up headquarters at Covington—the heart of a parish (county) politically friendly to Long—after his release from a state mental hospital Friday.

The governor startled the state Saturday when he indicated he would make changes in important state government posts.

Long indicated he would like to remove Theo Cangelosi as chairman of the Louisiana State University Board of Supervisors.

Long suggested he was miffed with Cangelosi over the way the Baton Rouge attorney handled legal matters during the governor's confinement in a psychiatric clinic at Galveston, Tex., and again during Long's stay at Mandeville, La., mental hospital.

The governor also hinted other changes would be made, perhaps in the State Department of Public Welfare and the State Hospitals Department.

Here's How State Can Save Money

Gov. Vandiver's Commission on Economy and Reorganization has drawn up an excellent blueprint to further implement the state's venture into fiscal sanity.

There is every reason to believe the recommendations on budgeting procedures, the only area of the report that has reached the final stage, will turn out to be the most significant ever made.

That is due to the merit of the contents and the fact that at long last a governor, after calling for a thorough study, not only has recognized the need for the changes suggested but has made it clear that he will implement them.

In other words, this is not just another set of findings to be relegated to a dusty corner of a shelf or to be tucked away into the recesses of a safe. Gov. Vandiver has made it clear that these are to be activated. Georgia has an abundance of studies that past administrations, for reasons of political expediency, allowed to become enveloped in cobwebs.

The real meat of the new report is in the insistence upon the employment of a staff of specialists to provide technical assistance to the governor, the budget bureau and an expanded finance commission in preparation of budgets.

It represents a step toward restoring the Legislature to its rightful role in fiscal matters in that the seldom-consulted finance commission, composed of legislators, will be enlarged and, according to Gov. Vandiver, taken into full partnership in drawing up a budget for the fiscal year 1960-61.

In the past the Herculean task was a two-man job, that of the governor and the state auditor. In that connection, Gov. Vandiver in receiving the set of proposed changes hailed Auditor Thrasher as "probably the finest state auditor in the nation." We heartily concur.

But as the governor quickly acknowledged, other responsibilities of the chief executive and the auditor are too great to allow them sufficient time to analyze spending proposals in detail.

Other areas of study not yet completed point toward recommendations of other money-saving measures, such as the state's self-insurance of its properties and means by which the state could derive income from its bank deposits.

There will be considerable emphasis upon centralization of procedures in a variety of fields ranging from records management to building repair and maintenance services.

Attention is being devoted to abolition or consolidation of certain agencies and functions.

A large number of other areas of governmental procedures are up for analysis with a view to reorganization and economy.

The commission is performing a valuable service. Activation of its findings will enable the state, with its total expenditures approaching a half-billion dollars annually, to be operated on a businesslike basis rather than in the helter-skelter and wasteful manner of the immediate past.

45-Year-Old Pistol Shot Is Reverberating Still

Yesterday was the anniversary of a murder which, obscure though it was to most Americans, profoundly affected their lives. It is an effect which will continue into the unforeseeable future.

On June 28, 45 years ago, two pistol shots fired in the town of Sarajevo, capital of Bosnia, killed Archduke Franz Ferdinand, heir to the throne of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, and his wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg.

The assassin, Gavrilo Princip, a Serb, was one of seven assigned to that task. He succeeded where the others had failed. His aim was better. It is a familiar story. Princip and his associates were seeking to obtain a union of the Serbs in the empire with those of the independent nation of Serbia which adjoined Bosnia.

Austro-Hungary sent an ultimatum to Serbia.

Then it was that "the lights began to go out all over the world." The first great war came on slowly, yet with a certain deadly certainty. Millions of men were to die and millions more were to be left crippled and maimed.

The Austro-Hungarian Empire then was about finished. It was, a historian has said, "a broken pot held together by wire." The great war broke that wire. The pot fell apart. Out of the ruins did come, with the assistance of Woodrow Wilson, a union of Serbs called Yugoslavia.

The sound of that pistol shot 45 years ago continues to echo down the corridors of time. The second great war brought communism to the Serbs. Then they escaped from Stalin's time to remain under Tito. And the end is not yet.

Parents Are To Blame For Rise in Delinquency

More young people get into trouble each year. In Fulton County the juvenile case load has increased each year since 1954.

The population of the area has increased, too, and that helps to account for the trend.

Even so, if all the lip-service given the problem were translated into action the trend could be reversed.

We talk too much and actually do too little about the problems of young people.

W. W. Woolfolk, the county's juvenile court judge, has pinpointed the trouble.

It is parents. Parents who work, parents who spend too much time away from home, parents who are not there at all, for one reason or another, parents who fuss, feud, fight and carouse.

Judge Woolfolk said, "... children are like small plants... pulled up and moved around until they become emotionally dwarfed."

He was talking about the children of transients.

But there are "little plants" not pulled up, just untended, a nursery started and then neglected by the over-privileged as well as the underprivileged.

Perhaps if we had youth clubs working as assiduously as we do have other clubs, the young might achieve more readily a full, wholesome and fruitful maturity.

How about your own family?
How does your garden grow?

Long's Louisiana Antics Follow an Old Pattern

Earl Long's three-ring circus is now in full swing in Louisiana. It is a degrading spectacle.

The political ax is falling rapidly and the governor is exhibiting his old traits in a new and accelerated manner.

The people of Louisiana seem to like the Longs and to glory in the sort of antics now on display. If they don't like it they have a remedy. Huey Long and his corrupt crew, some of whom went to jail for thievery, set a pattern which has been followed.

So while many of those outside Louisiana think the show is a disgraceful one, we may as well face the fact that it is what a majority of the people like.

Indeed, one citizen of the state has said, "If it were possible to melt down the political majority in Louisiana and squeeze it into a mold it would come out just like Earl Long."

Other states, when mourning about their own corruption and the vulgarity of some of their public officials, always can find comfort in the phrase, "Thank God for Louisiana. It's worse."

Gen. Taylor Joins Gavin In Protest on Policy

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, retiring chief of staff of the Army, is quitting because he feels "obsolescent."

He feels so because he has failed in his effort to modernize the Army. He believes it must be modernized because there is an atomic stalemate. If the Russians attack on land in Europe, without using nuclear weapons, we would be morally bound not to employ them. Therefore, Gen. Taylor, along with others, has urged that the Army and its weapons be modernized.

The administration, through the Defense Department, has refused. So Gen. Taylor, who almost certainly could have become chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, could not in conscience bring himself to continue when he did not agree with what was being done.

This reminds the nation, of course, of the loss of Gen. James Gavin who retired for similar reasons. He was regarded as one of the Army's best minds and as one of the finest professional soldiers in the world.

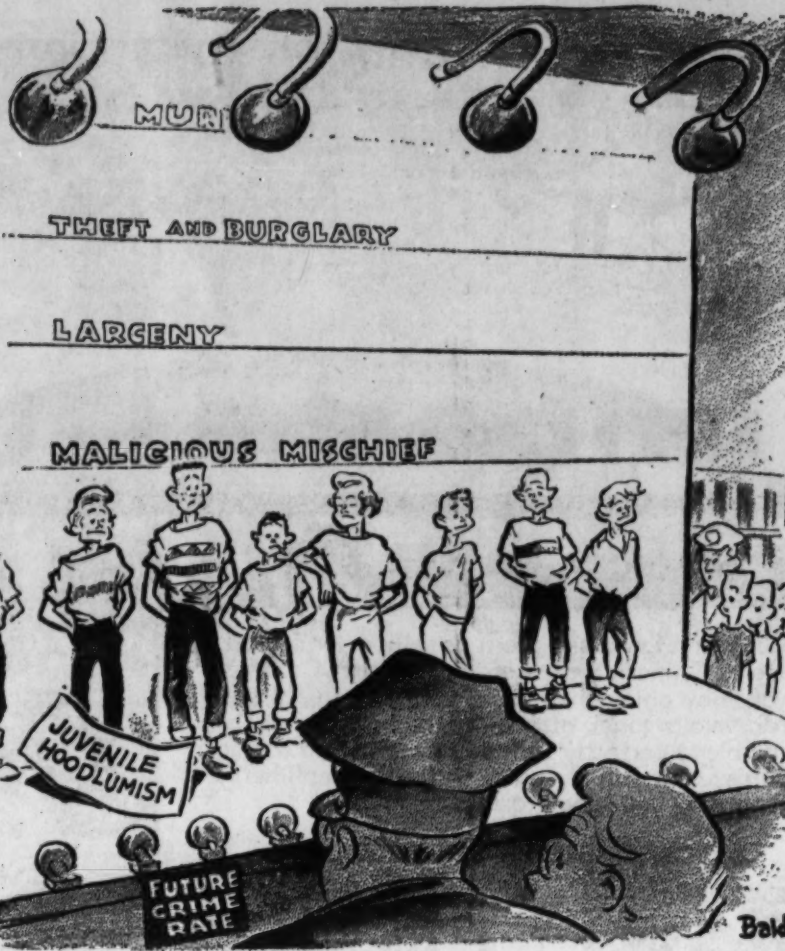

The average citizen can't know who is right. But it will not be very comforting if history proves Gens. Gavin and Taylor to be right in the form of a setback for a United States unprepared for war.

All we can do is say that the loss of these officers and others is disquieting.

Any way we look at it, it isn't good.

Gen. Lauris Norstad sees a possibility that war might come through error. There are those who would say that all wars have come that way.

Pulse of the Public

Georgian Asks Steelworkers, U.S. Steel To Avert Crippling Nationwide Strike

Atlanta — May I have a few lines of Pulse of the Public to do a bit of daydreaming?

When one is dreaming, he does not have to stick to actual statistics. So let's suppose for a minute that U.S. Steel sells two billion dollars' worth of goods in the first six months of 1959 and makes, let's suppose, two hundred million dollars. These are just some round figures for ease of calculation.

Are the United Steelworkers willing to propose to U.S. Steel that if U.S. Steel will discount its sales price by 5 per cent (one-half of the net profit), they, the steelworkers, will withdraw all requests for increased wages?

The steelworkers have the power to push a bitter fight for higher wages and thereby rush us all, including the steelworkers, into the next round of inflation.

Perhaps they have the ability, through cooperation in an effort to stop spiraling costs, to persuade the steel industry to take a little less cushion against possible rough going ahead. It would make for a healthier steel industry and a healthier climate for America's economic life.

INFLATION CONSCIOUS.

What About Subsidy In Other Fields?

Atlanta — I was interested to read the other day that there are two counties in the State of California producing (under subsidy by the government in receiving irrigation water at the ridiculously low price of $5 per acre per season) nearly one-half million bales of cotton each.

These are undoubtedly very large counties compared with some of our own here in Georgia, but nevertheless I often wonder how the cotton acreage controls made it possible for California to get such tremendous increases in acreages from year to year while our Southeastern farmers have been proportionately cut so drastically?

From my own experience in Clayton County, until this year it has been a struggle to even get an allowance of 50 per cent of our original cotton acreage that we had when the acreage allotment plan was instituted. The over-all Georgia figures will show a similar experience.

There are 39 commodities included in the government stockpile of surpluses. Isn't it rather peculiar that even though there is this stockpile some eight billion dollars' worth of various strategic materials such as rubber, etc., practically nothing is ever said about it in the press of the country?

On the other hand a similarly valued stockpile of farm products is held up to ridicule by the press and politicians throughout the country, with prices going lower and lower in Benson's effort to eliminate the so-called marginal and submarginal family farm.

DONALD M. HASTINGS.

Editor's Note: The rubber, tin and copper surpluses have been thoroughly aired. They are not dumped on the market for the same reasons farm surpluses are rather closely held. There is political opposition at home and abroad.

'Let Us Not Pervert Teachings of Christ'

Atlanta—I should like to propose that we start anew and study the teaching of Christ Jesus and His chosen apostles, believing they meant what they said.

I am astonished to see how the teachings of Jesus are twisted and warped until there is but a vestige of His teaching being taught.

Man's teaching and his ideas are the cause of the many denominations. These are crucial, perilous days. Let us not delude ourselves.

MRS. J. H. TAIT.

He Tells of Record Under Integration

Cordele—In reference to Mrs. A. C. J.'s letter printed June 17, in which she advises Negroes to attend our schools:

She has already concluded that Negroes will not be happy in integrated schools. Why?

As a Negro who has attended both segregated schools (Georgia public schools) and integrated ones (two Southern colleges), let me say that her opinion is not correct for at least one Negro.

I found as much, and at times more, happiness in integrated schools than in segregated ones. My school record was better in the integrated schools than in the segregated ones.

Mrs. A. C. J., why don't we give the youth an opportunity to help solve the momentous problems we are now facing in Georgia?

Patients at State Hospital Await Assembly's Action

Legislative committees visiting Milledgeville State Hospital have developed much useful information over the years. Unfortunately, much of this data has come to naught. The recent visit by the senators and representatives likewise turned up some interesting facts and some intriguing opinions.

We hope the General Assembly meeting in January will lend a sympathetic ear to the worthy recommendations of the joint committee.

The proposal for separating the older patients and thereby receiving federal funds for their care has merit, for example. Literally thousands of patients are not mentally sick, in the strict sense. If separation into special buildings will bring in U.S. funds and afford better care, then by all means let proper arrangements be made.

Suggestions for better treatment facilities and for more doctors and nurses likewise are valid.

All these needs should be met with the understanding that the state hospital must, as soon as feasible, be transformed from a Trip to Moscow Is Challenge to Nixon

WASHINGTON—Vice President Nixon looks upon his forthcoming mission to Moscow with the coolest of private detachment. He has disciplined himself to hope for very little—and also to walk a very tight rope, both as the President's emissary and in connection with his own 1960 presidential ambitions. He knows that there are both opportunities and dangers to the West in his trip.

In the lesser and personal sense he knows, too, that while this assignment could do him much good as a politician it also could do him tremendous harm.

To hear Nixon's views about this strangely challenging job is to be struck anew with the chill, rare objectivity with which, privately, he looks at any political problem, vast or comparatively small. Approve him or not, this is surely one of the most self-contained politicians of our era.

He has no illusions that he can produce any great "break" in the cold war—which he really thinks of as likely to run on for a quarter century. He does believe there is some possibility that his meetings with Soviet leaders may result in some rather negative improvement. He thinks, in short, that Nikita Khrushchev may be less likely, after his visit, to underestimate Western determination and thus less likely to dare hot war by miscalculation.

Humanly, moreover, the vice president welcomes this opportunity to test his poker-faced skill in head-on conversations with the Russians. Emphatically, however, he will attempt nothing in the way of direct negotiations. All this he will leave strictly to Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and Eisenhower. Nixon is proud of his cordial relationship with Herter and will do nothing to harm that relationship, in the interests both of the United States and of himself.

Beliefs Are Bases For Nobler Living

Our religious faith is based on convictions and beliefs. The fundamental beliefs are to be found in the teachings of our Lord. In His words are the concepts and affirmations upon which all Christian evangelism is premised. There are other beliefs, a rich legacy of the Christian tradition, which are also mighty important.

These are to be found in the teachings of the early church fathers, in the writings of the Church Fathers and in the dynamic ministry of the church through 20 centuries.

Sometimes people say it doesn't really matter what you believe. I think it does matter, for beliefs give stability and substance to Christian discipleship. Beliefs link our thinking to the vast Christian heritage and they become a channel of strength and encouragement from New Testament times to our own day. Beliefs also give solidarity to the church of our Lord, making us aware of our common kinship through "one Lord, one faith, one baptism" (Ephesians 4:5).

Many loyal churchmen, persons who seldom miss Sunday worship, are unable to communicate their faith to others. If a man were to approach them and say, "I am completely untutored in the central ideas of Christianity," they would be unable to enlighten his thinking.

The story is told of an interviewer who asked questions of a man who was working on an assembly line in one of our large cities. The interviewer asked, "What are you making?" "I'm making C 428," the man responded. "What is it?" the interviewer asked. "What is it?" the man responded. "I don't know." The interviewer asked another question. "What happens to C 428 when it leaves you?" "I don't know." The final question was, "How long have you been working here?" "Nine years," was the reply.

I think this story describes the understanding of the beliefs of Christianity of many earnest Christians. They have attended church all of their lives. They have been in Sunday school classes. They would be heartbroken if anyone were to suggest that they don't understand the church. But they have no real knowledge of the bases upon which Christianity was built and they are unable to interpret their faith to another man.

It does matter that we believe and it also matters what we believe. Some time ago I suggested that a group of Christian people write down on a piece of paper six or seven of the beliefs of the church universal. Would you be surprised to learn that half of the people could not think of more than one or two basic convictions?

May I suggest that each of you write down the beliefs which you consider to matter most. If you are unable to state more than two or three, you need to begin an intensive study of the Bible and of the great spiritual literature which has molded Christian thought.

Small-Town Folks Have Kind Hearts

This is a simple little story about plain people in a small town. There is very little drama, practically no pulsating adjectives and not a single parent fatally clouted by the son because they wouldn't turn the TV to another station. If you fear the pace will be too slow and wish your blood to race, then turn over and see whether the man-eating fish have got hold of Dick Tracy.

An elderly couple in a city on the banks of the Yazoo in the Mississippi Delta had planned for some time on a visit to California. Finally, this past spring they got aboard a bus and left for the West. Hardly had they arrived, though, when the husband suffered an attack which put him in a hospital for six weeks. His wife stayed at his side.

There came at last the day when he would be able to fly back to Mississippi. Some of their friends knew when the couple would arrive at home.

There was telephoning back and forth and various details were undertaken. When the couple drove up to their small house, the appearance was normal. The grass had been cut in their absence and the house appeared as it always had; it was home.

Upon entering the door, however, there came upon the man and his wife a great hubbub. Friends were yelling greetings, flowers nodded from every nook of the living room, a sign proclaiming "Welcome Home" waved in the foreground.

Overwhelmed, the two people simply sat down and cried.

When at last the excitement had subsided a bit, there came additional commotion from the kitchen. A detachment hidden there marched into the dining room bearing ham and cornbread, salad and iced tea—and blackeyed peas. And there were pies and cakes.

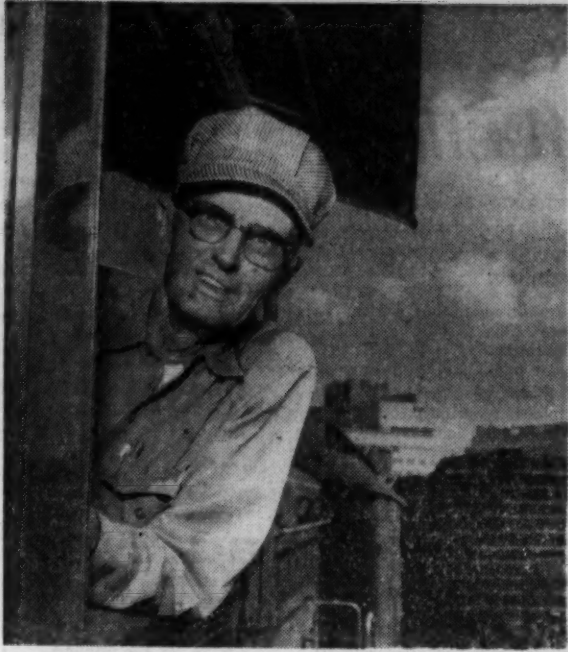

"You know," the husband said, "I was telling on the way home that it sure would be fine to sit down to a plate of blackeyed peas, and here they are, and all these other things."

The tears gathered again in his eyes, and the people who were there felt proud and grateful and glad.

What they had done wasn't much. There were some flower arrangements, a homemade sign, a chorus of yelled greetings, a laden table, and the blackeyed peas.

And as I said, this isn't much of a story, but it made me feel good when I heard about it from one of the participants and I hope it makes you feel good, too.

Here were kind hearts and love.

GEORGIA NEWS ROUNDUP

Poultrymen Shrug Off Sharp Price Advance

Georgia's slump-hit broiler and egg producers saw little cause for joy Sunday in news of sharp increases in prices.

Broiler prices jumped to 16.62 cents per pound early last week. But Tom Hodge, manager of the Georgia Poultry Exchange, said the price jump was expected as retailers and processors began stocking up for the up-coming July 4 weekend.

Hodge said prices Friday slipped to 16.20 cents per pound. He said he expected next week's prices to be unsettled because most processors already have bought up their holiday stock.

John Yarbrough, editor of the Georgia Poultry Times, said the jump was partly caused by the hot-weather curtailing of production.

Despite the price increases, Yarbrough said "most Georgia producers are still apprehensive over the outlook for the next few months."

River Hunt Grows

A massive river search was on late Sunday for a North Carolina fisherman feared drowned in the Oconee River near Dublin.

National Guardsmen, sheriffs' officers and about 50 volunteers dragged the log-strewn Oconee all day Sunday for the body of L. E. Pettis, 37, of Asheville, N. C. He, his wife and four children were in Dublin visiting relatives.

Pettis' overturned boat was found about six miles south of Dublin on the Oconee early Saturday. Pettis has not been seen since he went fishing alone about 3 p.m. Thursday.

When you're on a diet and eat less, you may find yourself bothered with constipation due to lack of bulk.

Fortunately, if this happens, there's a way to get back on schedule naturally—without going off your diet. It's the Kellogg's All-Bran way.

You see, just a half-cup of Kellogg's All-Bran (only 95 calories) provides all of the good bulk you need each day for consistent regularity.

So, if you'd like to stay regular, try Kellogg's All-Bran with milk for just 10 days. See if it doesn't work for you as it does for millions.

Fireworks Available Despite Georgia Law

Despite a law to the contrary, there likely will be a good supply of fireworks available to Georgians who like to celebrate the Fourth of July by shooting off a few firecrackers.

Georgia has a law to prohibit the sale of fireworks. But the act has a couple of loopholes, which according to State Fire Marshal F. E. Robinson, make it almost impossible to enforce.

Possession of fireworks for certain purposes, such as shipment out of state or sale to railroads, is permitted. "That means," Robinson said, "that if I seize a batch I have to be able to prove they were not held for shipment out of state or sale to railroads, or I've bought them on my bond—at the retail price."

The act also permits sale of fireworks for agricultural purposes. That provision always brings a laugh.

But Robinson says federal experiments conducted in Florida prove that firecrackers can be used effectively to protect crops from birds and some small animals.

This is no help to him in enforcing the Georgia law against sale of fireworks.

Several much tougher bills banning fireworks sales were introduced in the 1959 Legislature. But quite a hassle developed, and they wound up back in committee for study.

The fire marshal doesn't favor a strict ban on all fireworks. First, he said, while most people think only of firecrackers, the term fireworks includes a wide range of things including railroad and truck signal flares and materials used in school classroom experiments.

Control, Robinson thinks, would be more practical. That would permit sale of the so-called "safe and sane" fireworks, which include the small Chinese firecrackers, sparklers and small Roman candles, and other things designated as Class C. pyrotechnics by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Fireworks dealers, he reported, have organized and are pushing a law to permit sale of the safer articles and ban others.

And in that connection, Robinson noted that economics is a big factor in the issue. Sale of fire-

17 Killed, Dozens Injured In Blast at Recreation Area

is about 100 yards wide. The recreation areas extend about 100 yards both above and below the trestle.

The train was Seaboard Air Lines freight No. 82. It had left Vidalia at 2:30 p.m. and was due in Savannah at 5, according to a Seaboard official in Vidalia. The train was made up of 123 cars.

Witnesses to the disaster said the section of the train containing the tank cars exploded just as it was crossing the trestle. It may have derailed first.

SCREAMED TO PEOPLE

One survivor, interviewed at a Savannah hospital where he was being treated for burns about his body and for shock gave this account:

"The train came across the trestle and apparently jumped the tracks. I thought it was going too fast. I saw the train coming and screamed for people to take off for their lives."

Most of the swimmers and others in the water never heard that warning. Those who did had little time to make use of it.

The first ambulance on the scene was that of J. F. Jones of Bloomingdale. Jones said the scene looked "like a battlefield."

BODIES ALL AROUND

"There were bodies scattered all around," he said. "They were charred and black. I saw one little, I guess it was about a three months old baby. I thought it was a doll."

"I got there at about 4:25 and there was still a lot of fire. It wasn't burning on the water any more, but the fields and woods for about five acres around were all on fire."

Jones said he made several trips to Savannah hospitals, carrying two, three and more victims each time.

"Some of them never lived to Savannah," he said.

Another ambulance driver, Bill Wallis, said there were further explosions after the original two. Wallis was one of the early rescuers on the scene. "There were explosions popping every few seconds," he said.

The heat from the blazing, smoking butane kept early rescues from the center of the deadly area for a while. Like most other gases of this sort its flame burns at a temperature of between 1,200 and 1,400 degrees. Rescue teams did not enter many areas of the fire for two hours after the blast.

Whole families were together for a holiday at the recreation area, which adjoins Harvey's Fishing Camp.

Emergency rooms in Savannah hospitals included many injured screaming in pain and anguish, trying to find out if their children, parents, sisters, brothers and friends were dead or dying.

ALL DOCTORS CALLED

All physicians in the Savannah area were called into duty by telephone, radio and personal courier. Doctors from elsewhere in the vicinity answered calls to help the still alive victims of the freak tragedy. Pleas were broadcast for blood donors.

Many of the victims were children. One of the swimmers said one thing he remembered in the confusion, terror and flames was "a lot of little boys and girls screaming and running for their lives. "There was nothing anybody could do," the injured man, David Parker of Savannah, concluded hopelessly.

Many of the victims became charred to a point where they couldn't even be recognized. One rescuer said it was impossible to tell in some cases whether the victim was a man or woman.

A minister, the Rev. Eugene Cariker of Savannah, said of one burned victim he saw in a hospital: "I performed a wedding for the girl. Now I can hardly recognize her."

Early rescue efforts were hampered by congestion on the highway leading to Savannah from the scene of the explosion. State police immediately blocked off traffic to curious sightseers and Savannah police blocked all city streets leading from U. S. Highway 80 to several hospitals in town. Still there was much traffic clogging the highway in spots.

The wave of destroying flame that erupted from the tank cars reduced several cars in the train to cinders in a matter of seconds. The sudden downwind and rush of the fire wiped away a bathhouse on the shore of the river in one sweep.

One picnicker who survived the holocaust got a split second warning. Mrs. Phillip Carpenter said she heard a funny noise from above, then heard someone scream. "Go! Go! The gas will catch fire!"

She grabbed her son and dove into the water, then they escaped. Her husband, who waited a few seconds before leaping into the water, was badly burned. They were among the fortunate who were not in the direct line of the fire's quick spread.

magnitude as to lead to price increases."

But it disclosed that the committee is studying means of curbing "the excessive concentration of power in the hands of labor or business" which, it said, reduce productivity and create inflationary pressure.

PROTECT INTERESTS

"Remedies for these practices should be sought through eliminating the power to injure the public interests rather than through public control or review of the decisions of businesses, of unions, or of collective bargaining," Eisenhower was told.

Official sources confirmed the implication of that sentence—that the Nixon committee will explore proposals to use the federal anti-trust powers against monopolies in both labor and management.

The report was described by economist W. Allen Wallis, the committee's executive director, as "no bombshell."

ON COMMITTEE

Wallis, dean of the graduate business school of the University of Chicago, is also a member of the eight-man group, officially titled the Cabinet Committee for Price Stability for Economic Growth.

The other members, besides Nixon, are Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson, Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield, Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, Secretary of Labor, James P. Mitchell, Chairman Raymond J. Saulnier of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, and the secretary of commerce. It is presumed that Lewis L. Strauss, whose nomination as commerce secretary was rejected by the Senate, will be replaced on the committee by the new commerce appointee.

President Eisenhower in a statement accompanying the report, noted that all three recommendations for immediate action had already been submitted by him to Congress.

"I urge the Congress consider anew the committee's three recommendations, all of which require legislative action," he said.

Legislature Tour Of Hospital Likely

By JACK NELSON

Gov. Vandiver and the entire Legislature probably will inspect facilities of Milledgeville State Hospital, The Atlanta Constitution learned Sunday.

Rep. Culver Kidd of Baldwin said Lt. Gov. Garland Byrd already has accepted an invitation to tour the hospital and has agreed to appoint the full membership of the State Senate as a committee to visit the institution.

Kidd, chairman of a special Senate-House mental health study committee, said he will meet soon with Rep. George Smith II of Emanuel, House speaker, to work out arrangements for the naming of all House members as a special inspection committee.

In agreeing to send the Senate to Milledgeville, Byrd declared: "I know of no better way the taxpayer's money could be spent than to have the Legislature go through the state hospital and get a better understanding of what must be done to correct conditions there."

"I am 100 per cent behind a program of improved mental health. And I think it is essential that we visit the state hospital and make a thorough inspection."

Kidd said the legislators will come in groups of 20 to 25. Each group will spend two days, he said.

"We hope to have the first group visit the first part of September," Kidd said, "and the other groups to follow each week."

TOUR 'ESSENTIAL'

Both the legislative committee and the governor's own Advisory Committee on Mental Institutions reported Thursday that a personal inspection by the governor and the legislators was essential for them to better understand the problems of the huge mental institution.

Kidd and Dr. William Rottersman of Atlanta, chairman of the advisory committee, said that Gov. Vandiver should make an early visit to the hospital and the legislators should go at least before the 1960 legislative session.

Kidd wrote Gov. Vandiver Wednesday asking him to inspect the hospital at his convenience, but preferably within two weeks. Kidd said that a subcommittee of his committee and a subcommittee of Dr. Rottersman's advisory group would accompany the governor.

He asked that Gov. Vandiver take his wife with him so that she also could get a clearer picture of the conditions at the hospital.

"We're also asking that the legislators bring their wives with them," he said.

Kidd pointed out that the governor already had taken steps to reform the state's antiquated mental health system. The legislator wrote that it now was important for the governor to go through the wards and see first-hand the lack of facilities and personnel for treating the mentally ill.

Dr. Rottersman said that the advisory committee was "delighted" to join in the request that the governor visit the institution.

MOST SHY AWAY

If he does, he will be one of the few political leaders who have ever given personal attention to the state hospital. Political leaders, including many governors, have shied away from the institution in the past and have considered it a political liability.

Dr. Y. H. Yarbrough, member of the hospital staff for 53 years and former superintendent of the institution, said he could recall only two governors who made trips through the wards. They were Ellis Arnall and M. E. Thompson.

Dr. Yarbrough said that most of the inspections by legislative committees in the past have been superficial. Seldom have the wards been visited, he said.

"And the hospital is something you can't convey in words or pictures to anybody," Dr. Yarbrough said. "There is no adequate way to describe it. You have to go through the wards yourself to understand."

The recent inspection trip by the joint legislative committee left several of the committee members shaking their heads at conditions at the hospital.

"If every Georgian had to walk through this place today," said Rep. Robert L. Scoggin of Rome, "they would see to it that something was done about it by tomorrow."

New Effort To Solve Highway Crisis Seen

2 Senators Expect Congress To Act Before Adjourning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sens. Albert Gore (D-Tenn) and Thomas H. Kuchel (R-Calif) said Sunday they are certain Congress will make another effort to solve the money woes of the federal highway program before adjournment.

Neither, however, said he had any pat solution to what appears to be a stalemate between President Eisenhower and the Democratic-controlled Congress on the problem.

Kuchel, the Republican whip, told a reporter that assuring continuation of federal help for the highway construction program "is unquestionably the biggest unsolved legislative problem we have."

"If Congress were to walk away from this problem, the President would be justified in calling us back in special session," Kuchel said.

Gore, author of the 1956 act setting up the big construction program, said in a separate interview that Congress "before it adjourns, is going to send the President legislation which will enable him to decide whether he wants work to continue or stop on these highways."

Eisenhower complained last week that Congress has put the national road-building program in a critical $4,200,000,000 jam. He tried to prod Congress by giving state-by-state figures showing that work on the 41,000-mile national superhighway network will start slowing down soon and will limp to an almost complete halt over the next two years unless the financial crisis is solved.

The federal government pays 90 per cent of the cost of this system.

The immediate problem is 2½ billion dollars of apportionments to the states for the superhighways which normally would be made next month. These amount to authority to let contract, and result in immediate starts on projects in states that are ready to use the allotments.

However, not a penny of the apportionments can be made be-

Propane in Truck Killed 11, Hurt 15

By The Associated Press
The flaming explosion of a tank car of butane gas at Meldrim, Ga., Sunday recalled a similar blast earlier this month near Schuylkill Haven, Pa.

A propane gas truck, ignited by a rear-end collision, exploded June 2, killing 11 persons and injuring 15 others.

The 7,000-gallon-capacity truck had been burning for a half hour when it suddenly blew searing jets of flame 300 feet up the highway.

Many of the dead and injured were spectators who had lined the road in a holiday manner to watch the firemen battle the flames.

cause of prospective future deficits in the highway trust fund when the bills for the completed projects would come due in a year or two.

The deadlock over a solution was dramatized in two early morning votes in the Senate Friday in which rival plans to meet the situation were defeated.

The Senate rejected 46-33 Eisenhower's proposal that the federal gasoline tax be raised from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon to replenish the trust fund.

Then it turned down 47-33 a plan by Gore to put into the fund almost a billion dollars of highway user taxes which now go into the Treasury general funds. Republicans charged this would wreck the budget.

SCIENCE DISCOVERS WAY TO "WIPE OUT" ATHLETE'S FOOT

New saturated pads wipe athlete's foot fungi out of cracks between toes with prescription type, quick drying lotion.

Regular use effectively checks re-infection

New York (N. Y.) (Medical Special). Now you can actually wipe out the fungi that cause itching, peeling athlete's foot with a new kind of throw-away pads. The pads are saturated with a prescription type lotion that kills Athlete's Foot fungi on contact.

The active ingredients in the lotion are a combination of those prescribed by doctors, but until now not available in one formula. No messy creams, hit or miss powders and burning liquids. Just one wipe between cracked peeling toes and the cause of itching, peeling, and discomfort is literally wiped out. Then you throw the pad away. Painful stubborn cases begin to heal instantly.

Your feet feel cool, comfortable clean. When used regularly after healing, re-infection is effectively blocked. This new way to wipe out Athlete's Foot and keep it away is called Athlex. New Athlex foot pads are now available at all drug counters without prescription.

Family of 7 Found Slain In Garage

STETTLER, Alta. (AP) — The bodies of the seven members of a family were found Sunday under a pile of tires in the garage behind their house. Police said it appeared the seven had been shot to death.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police spokesmen said a suspect, picked up originally on a liquor charge, was being held for questioning.

Police withheld names and most of the details.

Neighbors said the bodies were those of a married couple and their five children. Three of the children were of school age they said, and the others were younger.

The bodies were found by police who searched around the house after finding no one at home.

Police said the seven died between Thursday and Sunday. Thursday night was the most likely time, they added.

Stettler is a farming town of 3,500 population, 90 miles southeast of Edmonton, in south-central Alberta.

WEST MUST COUNTER, HARRIMAN SAYS

Textile Hub Proves Potent Red Lure

tants, Dodokhudoev maintains, is self-supporting with an annual budget of a quarter of a billion dollars.

The Tadzhik economy is today based largely on cotton and cotton fabrics which it supplies to the rest of the Soviet Union. Low-yield short staple cotton which formerly produced only a few thousand tons yearly has been replaced by long staple varieties with yield comparable to those of California which gave the republic an income of $200,000,000 last year. New dams and irrigation canals have provided almost a million acres of new cultivated land. Local officials spoke warmly of the help they had received from three American engineers in planning their irrigation system.

A textile mill in Stalinabad turns out 50,000,000 yards of fabric and expects to double its production by 1964. How profitable it is can be judged by the fact that one of its principal fabrics costs the factory about 20 cents a yard and retails throughout the Soviet Union for 70 cents. (Amortization of the plant but not interest on the capital investment is calculated in the cost.)

MANY DIFFICULTIES

The builders of Tadzhikistan's economy have had to cope with many obstacles. Local scientists told me that large areas of irrigated land were rendered useless by salting until methods were devised to wash the salt out of the soil. The manager of the textile plant explained to me how he had had to train 3,000 unskilled laborers to operate his looms and spindles.

Thirty years ago there was scarcely a doctor in all of Tadzhikistan. Today there is one for every 870 inhabitants and a trained nurse for every 241. I visited one of Stalinabad's two children's hospitals and found it spotlessly clean and its staff obviously competent.

Malaria and trachoma, which have ravaged Central Asia for centuries were endemic in Tadzhikistan. "Anyone who had not had malaria, hadn't lived," one official told me. But today, he added, thanks to swamp drainage and wide use of insecticides, doctors complain there are not enough malaria cases for research purposes. Trachoma, too, has been brought under control with sulphur drugs.

STILL PRIMITIVE

In contrast to the wide tree-lined avenues in the newer parts of town with their blocks of government-owned apartments and many small but tidy privately-owned houses, the back alleys in the older sections which give access to the mud huts are still narrow and unpaved and the sewage system is primitive.

But the filth one usually associates with Central Asian adobe villages has been all but eliminated. "We have to keep our town clean," an official of ancient Samarkand said to me. "In our semitropical climate, filth spells disease."

The passion for education which pervades the Soviet Union has converted Tadzhikistan from a country of illiterates into a well educated community where only the oldest generation can neither read nor write. In 1929 scarcely 150 pupils attended Tadzhikistan's three schools. Today a third of a million children are enrolled in 2,600 schools.

This massive drive for education has borne fruits which may well have repercussions beyond the limits of pure learning. When I was ambassador to the Soviet Union, I often discussed with Marshal Stalin the Soviet minorities problem which was one of his principal interests.

STALIN'S POLICY

I gathered from him that his policy was to sugar-coat the Sovietization of minorities with carefully controlled self-expression in a limited field of national culture and folk lore.

Today one gets the impression that Khrushchev's decentralization policies have considerably increased local responsibility. Even at the Tadzhik ballet I was struck by the increased initiative with which native artists are developing their national music and dancing.

In the history department of the university, where researchers are uncovering new facts about the area's origins and ancient culture, students and professors boasted proudly of their national historic accomplishments. Even among bureaucracy, once dominated by Russians but now largely in Tadzhik hands, officials spoke almost freely of the facility with which Asians have assimilated conquerors in the past.

"In three generations," one of them said, "the Moghuls were swallowed up by the Hindus, just as all conquerors in Asia are." His smile seemed to imply that he hoped the conquerors from Moscow might undergo a similar conversion, at least to the extent of granting concessions to national autonomy.

Perhaps the most significant development has been the establishment of an Academy of Sciences staffed by native Tadzhiks. When the academy was founded 10 years ago there were few native scientists and most of its members were Russians. Today 70 per cent of the members are Tadzhiks and their proportion is steadily increasing.

The president of the academy, S. U. Umarov, a professor of

Statehood Voted 18-1 By Hawaii

HONOLULU (UPI) — Hawaii Sunday stood on the verge of statehood, having proved to the world in a Congress-ordered plebiscite that its inhabitants wanted to become the 50th state.

The vote in Saturday's election was an overwhelming 18 to 1 in favor of the statehood the islands have been seeking for more than 50 years.

Nearly complete returns on the statehood question Sunday morning showed a yes vote of 121,567 with only 7,313 votes cast against adding star number 50 to the American flag.

In combination with the plebiscite, islanders also made it a primary election to name the candidates to run for Congress and state offices in the general election of July 28. Within 30 days after that election President Eisenhower will name the date for admission of Hawaii into the Union—probably sometime in October.

Democratic candidates for most federal and state offices showed surprising strength in the primary vote for statewide nominations.

theoretical physics, told me with pride that he had been left an orphan as a small child in a little town in northern Tadzhikistan. After finishing the only primary school in the area he had managed to get to Tashkent to finish his schooling and from there to Leningrad, where he had taken his degree.

Today his academy maintains 13 research institutes to study the practical problems of the area. A geological institute is conducting a thorough survey searching for new minerals. Agriculturists are improving livestock, soil cultivation and irrigation methods and seeding by aircraft better grasses to improve sheep grazing in the mountains, which comprise 90 per cent of the state.

They are also searching for better fodder for the yaks, which are the principal livestock of the high eastern Pamir Mountains. Archaeologists have organized a number of field expeditions to explore ancient ruins bearing on Tadzhikistan's past. An institute of Orientalology is studying the racial relations of the Tadzhiks

Thief Learns to Bite From Watch Dog

ROMFORD, England (UPI) — Kim, the police dog, did his duty and captured alleged house-breaker Samuel Smith, 41, a court was told Saturday. But when Kim was called off, Smith took his revenge. He bit the dog's handler in the thigh, then a thumb, a policeman testified. Smith was remanded in custody.

with their neighbors in Iran, Afghanistan, northern India and the Arabic-speaking countries.

Tadzhikistan is only one of the central Asian states which have emerged from a backward tribal community. In Alma-Ata, the capital of Kazakhstan, Prime Minister D. A. Kunaev told me that he himself had been born a nomad when his father had shepherded his flocks about the steppes of Lake Balkash. Not until 30 years ago had the Soviet authorities induced or compelled these nomads to settle on collective farms.

The examples these Soviet central Asian states provide of a rapid improvement of the economic life of underprivileged people have not gone unnoticed by the hundreds of visitors pouring through the great international airport of Tashkent, the Soviet gateway to southern Asia.

They are giving telling ammunition to the Communist parties of southeast Asia, which offer people who have little understanding of the value of freedom a tempting alternative to the slower procedures of democracy.

If the Western democracies, and particularly the United States, are to meet Khrushchev's challenge of economic competition in these areas they must show a greater understanding of the problems and aspirations of those seeking to improve their status and make greater efforts to help them achieve those aims rapidly—and in freedom.

More articles by Harriman will follow in The Constitution.

Soviet Flies Nonstop to Fair in N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — Frol Kozlov, Soviet first deputy premier, arrived here Sunday to open the Soviet cultural and scientific exhibition. He landed at Idlewild airport in a new Soviet turboprop plane after an 11-hour, 6-minute nonstop flight from Moscow.

He told newsmen he was confident the forthcoming Soviet and American fairs will help "bring about a consolidation of peace throughout the world."

Kozlov, 50, will open the Soviet exhibition Monday at the New York Coliseum. Vice President Richard M. Nixon will open the American fair in Moscow on July 25.

Commenting on the 4,660-mile flight, Kozlov, who spoke in Russian translated by an interpreter, said the distance between the Soviet Union and the United States "appears to have decreased" and the opportunities for "reciprocal meetings appear to have expanded."

Kozlov said he was "glad of the opportunity to visit New York City and see your wonderful country." He plans to travel throughout the United States to visit industrial areas.

As scores paced the corridors in anguish outside the emergency clinic at Candler hospital, doctors and nurses worked frantically to save lives. Most of the victims were rushed to Candler.

Inside the emergency clinic, a small unidentified girl had just been wheeled in. A doctor pulled the bloody blouse aside to place the stethoscope to her chest and at the same time placed his hand to her wrist. The doctor looked up and nodded to a nurse who pulled the sheet over the child's head.

After nightfall, the burning trestle and boxcars shot flames high into the darkness, as sirens wailed down dusty roads to pick up the dead and injured near Harvey's Fishing Camp at Meldrim, a small community on a dirt road off U.S. Highway 80 west of Savannah.

Committee Views Sites For Vocational School

By HERMAN HANDCOCK

Plans for establishment of a multi-million-dollar area vocational and trade school, largest in the entire south, are nearing completion, it was indicated Sunday.

A special sites committee from the Atlanta and Fulton and DeKalb county boards of education has canvassed the entire area and a report is expected early in July.

Thomas W. Clift, state vocational consultant and former assistant superintendent of Atlanta schools; Norman Aaron, assistant Fulton school superintendent, and Sam Moss, assistant Fulton County superintendent, will file the report.

EASILY ACCESSIBLE

There were reports that a site containing from 30 to 50 acres will be proposed, and that it will be easily accessible to projected circumferential roads around Atlanta.

The facility is planned to serve the whole metropolitan area, extending 40 to 50 miles from Five Points. When fully developed the school, which will be known as the "Atlanta Area Vocational-Technical School," could easily have an enrollment of 10,000 students and could conceivably serve the entire state.

The project will be financed jointly by the three boards of education and the State Department of Education.

Under the plans the three boards of education will build the school. The state and the three boards will share the expense of equipping it, with the state paying one-half the cost and the three school systems the remainder. The state will pay the entire cost for all instructional service.

COOPERATIVE PROJECT

Thus the project will be a cooperative one, with the four educational units contributing substantially to its construction, equipment and operation.

Clift said space should be provided for some 3,000 automobiles. He said day schools will be maintained and that adults and working students will attend night classes.

"All those interested in the undertaking feel the new, modern, and adequate facility is badly needed," Clift said. "They all have worked harmoniously and cooperatively to make it a reality. We now believe success is just around the corner."

Ex-Envoys Score U.S. Policy Lag

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) said Saturday night a survey of retired U.S. diplomats reflects widespread concern over "our seeming inability to grasp the initiative" in the cold war struggle with Soviet Russia.

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, also said the State Department has refused to supply the views of current diplomats to the committee for a study it is making of U.S. foreign policy.

In an introduction to a compilation of the views of former foreign service officers, Fulbright said:

"In an effort to provide a balance to this collection of views, the committee asked the Department of State to cooperate in obtaining similar comments from chiefs of diplomatic missions now on active duty, with similar anonymity as to individual identification of views.

"The Department of State was not willing to agree to the committee's request."

Fulbright said the former diplomatic officials, none of whom was named, generally voiced concern over what he termed the defensive posture of U.S. foreign policy.

Fulbright said the former diplomats:

1. Placed part of the blame for "our apparent passivity in foreign relations . . . on the difficulties of conducting a bold, consistent, on-going and expensive foreign policy in a democracy."

2. Said that "the proliferation of staffs, the endless coordination, and the lack of clearcut lines of responsibility all inhibit a timeless and aggressive policy."

3. Contended that the "bypassing of ambassadors and the undercutting of traditional diplomatic methods by direct participation by the secretary of state in negotiations and the holding of high-level international meetings" has had "a deleterious effect on the foreign service."

Weekend Traffic Kills 10 in Georgia

An Atlantan was killed Sunday and two others injured in a high speed automobile crash in south Fulton County, bringing to 10 the number of weekend traffic fatalities over Georgia, police said.

L. L. Davenport, 28, Negro, of 39 Jackson St., NE, was killed in the wreck 8½ miles west of Palmetto on Hutchinson Ferry Rd., Patrolmen O. T. Jones and W. H. Thomas said.

William Vaughn Rice, 56, personnel director of the State Revenue Department, and his wife were killed in a three-car wreck Saturday near Twin Cities in Emanuel County. They were reported returning to their Atlanta home after a vacation trip to Savannah.

Mary Ann Williams of Atlanta was killed and three persons injured Sunday morning when their car overturned eight miles south of Douglasville.

Rosa Williams, 68, of Rte. 4, Swainsboro, was injured fatally and two persons hurt when their car smashed into a tree Sunday near Stillmore in Emanuel County.

Mrs. Alice Jeanette Jesse, 49, of Atlanta died Sunday morning of injuries received in a car-train wreck Saturday night. The car in which she was riding collided with a train at the Lakewood and Milton crossing in Atlanta.

Jimmy Anderson, 12, of Tunnel Hill was killed Saturday when the car he was in spun out of control west of Dalton.

Clinton Watson Johnson, 21, of Lawrenceville was injured fatally Saturday when his car left U.S. Highway 29 near Dacula.

A similar crash Saturday killed Charles Edward Bone, 22, of Dallas.

Max Thomas Cammon, 17, was killed near his home town of Hogansville Friday night when his car went out of control, left the road and overturned.

Heat Produces Nudist Boom

LONDON (UPI)—Hot summer weather Sunday boomed the British nudist camp business. Charles MacAskie, 74-year-old dean of British nudist camp leaders, said 500 to 600 persons have been showing up at his Hertfordshire camp on recent Sundays. Usually only about 300 nudists appear, he said.

Frederick Stukenborg Dies

Frederick W. Stukenborg of 743 Piedmont Ave., NE, died Sunday in a private hospital.

Born in Cincinnati, Ohio, Mr. Stukenborg had been an Atlanta resident for seven years. He was an inventor and dedicated his life's work to the study of agronomy and the invention of a cotton harvesting machine.

Mr. Stukenborg attended Xavier University, Cincinnati, Ohio, and was employed by Curtiss-Wright Aircraft Co. as an inspector during World War II.

He secured his first patent in 1922 and was the author of a book, "The Stukenborg Mechanical Cotton-Picking Machine."

He was a member of the Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

The Rosary will be said Monday at 8 p.m. in Lowndes Chapel. Funeral services will be at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the Sacred Heart Church, the Rev. John Emmerth officiating. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Stukenborg is survived by his wife, two brothers, Lewis Stukenborg, Memphis, Tenn., and Frank X. Stukenborg, Toledo, Ohio; and a sister, Mrs. Helen Newman, Memphis.

10,000 March, Protest H-Bomb

LONDON (AP)—Ten thousand banner-waving marchers poured through sun-drenched London Sunday in a "ban-the-H-bomb" demonstration called by the leftist British Peace Committee. They sang especially composed disarmament songs in Trafalgar Square and dispersed peacefully after covering about two miles of city streets.

Our pledge to the public

Among the costs you pay for travel and transportation on the Nation's railroads is a hidden charge of $500,000,000 for which you get nothing.

This is the cost of work paid for but not performed or not needed. This is what is known as Featherbedding.

Featherbedding arises from old and useless work rules which restrict the advancement of employees, increase the cost of service to the public and impair the efficiency of railroads. It is confined to a minority of employees, many of whom were not born when these rules were made.

"Make Work" does not make jobs — it destroys them

Everyone loses by Featherbedding, most of all railroad employees. These "make work" rules do not make jobs.

Approximately 1000 railroad jobs a week have disappeared in the past decade, and an even greater loss is inevitable if the rules are not modernized to provide the public with better service.

For a generation, railroad management has sought the cooperation of the rail operating unions to end these wasteful and costly practices—but without meaningful results. Four months ago, management suggested that the matter be submitted to an impartial commission for an objective study in the public interest.

The operating unions not only refused to join in this step but warned that they would oppose any move by management to establish such a commission.

Refusal to cooperate—does not solve the problem

This callous disregard of the public's interest and this continued refusal to admit that there is anything wrong in charging the public $500,000,000 for work not performed or not needed leave the railroads no alternative but to seek a solution by some other means.

Accordingly, the management of America's railroad industry pledge that they will continue to strive, by whatever means are proper and hopeful of success, to obtain some correction in these inflation-producing, job-destroying, outmoded work rules, so that the country may have the modern and efficient railroad service to which the public is entitled.

$200,000,000 to stoke non-existent fires

Unlike steam locomotives, Diesels require no fires of any kind. Yet the public still must pay more than $200,000,000 a year for the obsolete job of fireman.

—this is Featherbedding!

9 days' pay for a 16-hour run

Fast New York-Chicago trains make the run in 16 hours, yet the railroads pay 9 basic days' pay for each engine crew position on the trip.

—this is Featherbedding!

A day's pay for one switch operation

A "road" engineer pulled a freight train into a yard but had to back it up the length of 40 cars. For this he was able to claim an extra day's pay as a "yard" engineer.

Satchmo Better, Plans To Leave Hospital Today

SPOLETO, Italy (AP)—Louis Satchmo Armstrong's physician said Sunday night the musician is making a steady recovery from pneumonia and should be able to leave the hospital here Monday.

Dr. Alexander Schiff said Armstrong will go to Rome soon after breakfast Monday "unless something unforeseen happens."

Schiff said the trumpet player will rest at a Rome hotel until Thursday and then take a plane for New York. That would get Armstrong back to the United States in time to celebrate his 59th birthday July 4.

Armstrong was stricken with pneumonia shortly after arriving in Spoleto last Monday to play in a festival of European and American music.

Two Roads for Dusty

Five autumns ago the name Dusty Rhodes led to headlines. Now it's just another agate-sized detour on the box score map of San Francisco baseball. The once famous pinch-hitter is feeling the pinch at the plate.

After 14 trips to the batter's station, Rhodes owns three hits, good for no home runs and only a .214 average. Dusty never knows if the next stop will be Phoenix and further Pacific Coast League service.

Logue

It was not always so.

After three appearances in the 1954 World Series, the husky son of an Alabama farmer had harvested three hits, including his second homer and his fifth run batted in.

James Lamar Rhodes became the hero of every red-blooded American TV fan that fall by personally stampeding the Indians. Under his vigorous clubbing the Cleveland branch became a vanishing tribe, disappearing in four games.

Rhodes collected 10 World Series records along with his scalps and the crisp green folding material they came wrapped in. Dusty's fame and future were assured.

Nearly every town where he had ever spent the night adopted Rhodes as its favorite son. Some with more legitimate claims on his background, like Rock Hill, S.C., and Montgomery, Ala., launched parades in his honor.

Dusty toured the land as a good will ambassador for a beverage company.

He gave the writers lively quotes on baseball subjects, specializing in heart-felt testimonials to New York Giant manager Leo Durocher and Willie Mays, the catch-all center fielder.

"That Leo, he's smart," Dusty said around Christmas 1954. "Let smarter than I am. You can tell that by the way he handled me last year. 'When I need Dusty,' he said, 'I want him.' I'm gonna make sure he can have him, any time he needs me to step up there and win him a ball game."

Of Mays, he said earnestly, "That Willie Mays is authentic. He is the greatest ballplayer I ever saw, and a fine person. You know, well adjusted and all that."

From Series Hero to .059 Pinch-Hitter

Dusty received a 50 per cent pay boost before the 1955 season opened. It was estimated that increased his salary to $15,000.

Although appreciative of his extraordinary pinch-hitting success, he said he wanted to play regularly. His ambition was to hit .400.

On June 1, 1955, Rhodes was hitting .130.

After murdering National League and Cleveland pitchers as a relief swinger the previous season, he had one hit in 16 pinch hit attempts, an average of .059. His overall mark of 7 for 54 wasn't much better.

"I'm just lousy," the ever frank Rhodes declared. "What else is there to say?"

Never much of a hand with a glove, he dropped from the majors when his batting eye went on the blink. Dusty has returned to the big time occasionally, but never in the grand style of that glorious October. Who has?

He's still trying. And there are a lot of people pulling for him. Leo Durocher now spends his afternoons talking to the television Mike instead of the umpires. But I'll bet he'd get a boot out of a notable Rhodes' comeback.

So would the New Yorkers who sat in at the Polo Grounds when Dusty scalped the Indians. The San Francisco crowd wasn't there. But they could read. They know a hot Rhodes but could close the gap between third and first place in the standings.

What does Dusty think about his chances? A telephone visitor caught the veteran Giant with a couple of minutes to spare just before a game the other night.

It's Where You Hit 'Em That Counts

"I'm hitting the ball as good as I ever have," he began. "I'm getting a lot of good wood on it. But I'm also hitting the ball right at the fielders."

"You know you've got to have the luck in baseball. If the hits are falling, you're a hero. If they're not . . . well . . . you know."

The caller then asked Rhodes how the 1959 San Francisco Giants stack up with the 1954 New York variety.

"We've got a chance to win the pennant," he answered. "Why? We are definitely a better defensive team than we were in '54."

Rhodes named the defenders position by position, eventually getting to infielder Jim Davenport of St. Louis. Siluria isn't too far from Deatsville, Rhodes' old home town. "That Davenport is the best third baseman I've ever seen—bar none," he enthused.

Who's the better sticker: Orlando Cepeda or Mays? "They're both fine hitters," Rhodes parried. "Willie has been in a slump. But he's coming out of it."

Dusty says the fences aren't the same at Seal Stadium and that 15 m.p.h. wind blowing into left is another important change, adding, "When you catch a popup here you've done something."

How about Durocher vs. Bill Rigney as managers?

"They are different types," Rhodes replied. "But both can get the job done. Yeah, Rigney can crack the whip when he has to."

His last words were these: "I've got to go. Rigney's having his pre-game meeting and they're calling me."

Dusty Rhodes stood ready to do his best.

Meanwhile in the American League, the Indians were on the warpath again.

SPIKE WOUND SENDS LOGAN TO SIDELINES

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves suffered another crippling blow Sunday when shortstop Johnny Logan suffered a severely gashed right ankle in the third inning of the game against the Chicago Cubs.

Logan, who missed a week earlier this month because of a pulled thigh muscle, was spiked by Chicago pitcher Dave Hillman on a pickoff throw from catcher Del Crandall.

Logan was taken to Milwaukee Hospital where about 20 stitches were required to close the deep, ragged wound. He will be hospitalized two to three days and is expected to be out of action a week to 10 days.

The fiery shortstop is the Braves' second leading hitter with a .332 average. Hank Aaron tops the club and the National League with a .386 mark.

MOBILE, Ala. — The Crackers were considering trying to have Mobile's new Hartwell Field declared a disaster area Sunday after dropping their third doubleheader in three days here, 7-1 and 6-0.

Continuing in the most horrendous mass batting slump in several seasons, Atlanta managed only three singles off Don Schaeffer in the Sabbath opener and a double and three one-basers off Bill Dailey in the nightcap.

A crowd of 1,219 sun-bathing fans (937 paid) can attest to the fact that the Crackers have never been more futile at bat and seldom so inept afield.

For errors of omission and commission, the most damaging by first baseman Ray Shearer and catcher Guy Morton, made it impossible for Cracker starters Corky Valentine and Jack Roberts—or their followers—to put up any kind of reasonable resistance against the Bears.

When complete surrender had been made, and the lurid details catalogued, it was discovered the Crackers had "belated" 29 hits, scored just 11 runs and had only six scoring innings in the 48 they played in six games here.

It further was noted that only the batting charts of George Holder, Poochie Hartfield, Bob Taylor and Jack Baumer bore the slightest semblance of respectability.

Clean-up batter Em Lindbeck, swatting .335 before the series, managed only one safe blow in 19 trips. Emil Panko was one for 15. Bob Talbot was one for 19 and hadn't hit safely in 21 times at bat when he crashed a two-run double in the fifth inning of the second game. Shearer, whose fielding was atrocious, fanned four times Sunday and had only three singles, one an infield tap, to show for 20 official trips in Mobile.

Sunday trouble began almost with the first pitch. For Morton, squinting into the sun, couldn't get hold of leadoff batter Jack Waters' foul pop.

Pizarro Outlasts Cubs, Hillman, 2-1

Mathews Slams His 23rd; Crandall Raps Home Winner

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Juan Pizarro, recalled from Louisville only five days ago, held Chicago to five hits Sunday as the league-leading Milwaukee Braves defeated the Cubs, 2-1, before 32,884.

All of the scoring was done in the fourth inning, and the margin of Pizarro's first victory was Dale Long's error on a pop foul.

After Eddie Mathews matched the Cubs' run with his 23rd homer, Wes Covington singled and Joe Adcock walked. Long dropped Del Crandall's foul and Crandall then singled to score Covington, with what proved to be the winning run.

Dave Hillman, who had pitched one-hit ball until that inning, was the victim of Long's decisive miscue.

Don Elston and Bill Henry blanked the Braves the rest of the way, but the Cubs were unable to break through against Pizarro. The Puerto Rican left-hander struck out seven and walked the same number, pitching his way out of several jams, to balance his record at 1-1. He had lost one game before being farmed out.

Homelite Caravan Demonstrates Mower Car to Georgia Dealers

During the past two weeks Homelite dealers and customers throughout North and Middle Georgia have been treated to a visit by the Homelite Caravan, and to demonstrations of the Homelite Mower Car plus the new Model 9 Chain Saws from Homelite's modern plant at Gastonia, North Carolina.

Factory specialist George Lodge with Bill White of Homelite, Atlanta, found enthusiasm ran especially high for the Mower Car. Lodge explains that Homelite is always expected to have fine chain saws but the Mower Car is a new example of the fine quality and engineering by the 34-year-old concern whose history is one of solid growth based on thorough knowledge of engines and the pumps, generators, chain saws and now Mower Cars driven by these engines specifically designed and built for the requirements of the driven components.

Years of market analysis, designing and testing have gone into this "finest of riding rotary mowers." Underneath its beautiful fiberglass shrouds are many innovations in simplified, sturdy construction intended to provide a lifetime of year-round work in lawn and grounds care. This is exemplified by the full year guarantee and the list of available accessories which include a roller, aerator, utility dump trailer, three gang reel mower and lawn sweeper.

The six full horsepower Home-

VERSATILE HOMELITE MOWER CAR—Now on display at Homelite-Atlanta, 495 Piedmont Ave., NE, the Homelite Mower Car is packed with features that make it ideal for maintaining even the very finest turf. lite engine is fully governed, cool running and quiet. It drives both rear wheels and the rotary blade through the power-disc transmission, which has three forward speeds, neutral and reverse. The blade itself turns at proper cutting speed regardless as to which "gear" of the transmission is moving the car. This makes for especially smooth cutting as well as prevents damage to blade, guard, etc. should a heavy object be hit by the blade.

The rear wheels are so driven that a differential action takes place in turning so that they do not "scuff" the lawn, in addition to this Homelite's dual-trac drive moves the Mower Car safely and surely even when one wheel slips, as on mud. The rear tires are the wide "floatation" type to prevent marking the finest turf.

The cutting height of the blade is adjusted in any of five positive positions right from the driver's seat and even while mowing. A sixth position raises the entire guard and blade for maximum clearance while using the Mower Car for its many other lawn chores. This position also stops the blade from turning.

Those that have seen and tested the machine these past weeks pointed out many other features that they especially liked. One man in Gainesville, Ga., stated his one complaint—"It ain't mine."

You are cordially invited to see and try this fine mower at

Two More Days Left in June Leadership Sale

You can fit the thrill and pleasure of driving a beautiful 1959 Chevrolet into your budget now! Unusually large allowances and reduced terms are now being featured by the men of John Smith Co., Georgia's oldest Chevrolet dealer at 530 W. Peachtree St.

Concluding their "June Leadership" sale tomorrow, every member of the John Smith Co. sales staff is giving his customers the biggest deals in the long and glorious history of this firm.

The two John Smith locations, at 530 West Peachtree and the used car department at 555 Spring will be open until 11 p.m. Tuesday evening to wind up the June sale.

They have one of the largest new Chevy inventories in the South. Your courteous John Smith salesman will bring out the exact color, model and equipment you desire — to fit your own particular taste and budget.

But if you can't make it today or tomorrow, be sure to visit John Smith any time this week for their Pre-Fourth sale. New Biscaynes have been reduced to $1,995. Bel Airs reduced to $2,140. Station Wagons down to $2,240, and Impalas as low as $2,340 — all with standard factory equipment.

Known throughout this area as "The Old Reliable," the John Smith Co. has grown with Atlanta for almost 100 years. In the spring of 1869, Atlanta citizens traveled about the city in carriages purchased from the John Smith Co., which had first opened its doors that year. Today—a full 90 years

GOAT MILK PRODUCTION TRIPLED

Bunn Delivers in Atlanta, Marietta and Stone Mountain

The T. E. Bunn Goat Dairy, owned and operated for 10 years on Mr. Bunn's farm at 3640 N. Druid Hills Road, Decatur, has moved due to the growth and expansion of Greater Atlanta.

A large 300-acre farm in Oconee County is now the home of Mr. Bunn's herd where it has been combined with Truett Hogan's herd. Here, with added space and adequate facilities, milk production has been tripled under ideal conditions.

Due to the enlargement of the herd, it is now possible to deliver goat milk to all sections of greater Atlanta, Marietta and Stone Mountain as well.

Mr. Bunn still retains the self-service refrigerator at his home at 3640 N. Druid Hills Road. Here goat milk can be picked up at the price of only 50 cents a quart. This is considerable saving for those who can drive conveniently to the house. The delivered price is 60 cents.

Now with the increased herd he will be able to serve all customers during the winter months. In order to be sure of getting goat milk all winter it will be wise to start now while the supply is plentiful.

Mr. Bunn has installed the service of a mechanical answering system that will record a message when no one is in. There will be no need to make several calls. In order to leave a message, just call ME. 4-8572 any time of the day and night and state your message, which will be recorded. Then when Mr.

Goat milk is a wholesome food. It is so easy on the digestive system that it helps nature to heal and bring back your good health. This is the reason it is such a good food for those with a feeble digestive ailment, as ulcerated stomach. Goat milk is an alkaline food, where cow's milk is an acid, and for this reason it is food for allergy patients. Goat milk is good for everybody, particularly helpful for babies and elderly people.

Try this delicious, healthful food and see if it will not help you back to good health. Just call ME. 4-8572 for delivery. Or pick up your supply of goat milk at 3640 N. Druid Hills Rd.

Famous Armor Retread Tires Also in Sale

Everybody's talking about the biggest tire sale of the season, now in full swing at the Prior Tire Co., 458 Peachtree, one of the largest Hood Tire distributors in the U.S.A.

All Hood tires, nylon or Tyrex tubeless or tubetype, black or whitewalls, in all sizes have been substantially reduced in price. Included in the sale are Prior Tire's famous "Armor" retread tires.

Designed for safe, sure stops and to give the car owner longer wear and greater mileage, the non-skid Armor tread, exclusive with Prior Tire Co., is today used with pleasure and satisfaction by thousands of Georgia motorists and truckers.

Despite the heavier demands upon their recapping department—as the vacation season gathers momentum and summertime driving increases—officials of Prior Tire Co. announce that they are still featuring eight-hour service on recapping.

Utilization of the latest in precision-type machinery, manned by trained, experienced recapping specialists, assures the car owner that his tires will be retreaded expertly... and will meet the rigid specifications required before any tire is released from the Prior Tire Shop.

Prior Tire Co. is often called the "pioneer" tire recapper. One reason is that the firm constantly seeks better and more superior methods of tire recapping. During the past 27 years they were among the first to test and put into practice many new types of machinery and techniques.

This vigorous and progressive policy is pursued just as energetically today, and Prior Tire retreads have become symbols of quality and reliability among car, truck and tractor owners around the state. The firm uses only 100 per cent cold rubber in their plant.

Nothing is left to guesswork in their operation, and when the tire is returned to the owner the finished product looks, wears and performs like a brand-new tire!

Emphasis is also placed on speedy service to customers. Delivery of the freshly retreaded tires is accomplished by a fleet of 12 trucks, all bearing the familiar slogan: "Here Comes Help!" Prior Tire's other well-known catch phrase "Don't Cuss—Phone Us" (JA. 2-8866) continues to be one of the Atlanta

RICH'S

A SOUTHERN INSTITUTION SINCE 1867.

I NTEGRITY:

STORES, LIKE PEOPLE, HAVE INTEGRITY

When there is a need for professional advice, a person turns to one who has a reputation in his field, one known for his ability and his integrity. His is a reputation that has been earned through years of honest, efficient service to society. A store, too, must earn its reputation for integrity, for fairness, for consideration of others. This was a basic belief of Rich's founders . . . one adhered to through the years . . . assuring the customer of fair return for dollars spent. That strict adherence to the principle of fair dealings, has, with passing years, earned for Rich's a reputation for integrity, a reputation guarded more carefully than a precious gem.

Mom's Life is Easy With 11

By HARRIETTE WEINSTEIN
"There is nothing unusual about us — but our number," laughed the mother of 11 children, ranging in age from 18 years to 5 weeks.

In fact Mrs. William Egan shattered most of the platitudes about large families.

"When they are at an age they want to be helpful, they are. And just like small families, when they don't want to be helpful — well."

"There ARE leftovers. So I put them in my crowded refrigerator. But there are never ENOUGH leftovers to serve 13 people. And everyone complains when they get leftovers for lunch."

"Hand-me-downs are hard to manage. Often there is several years difference in age between one girl and the next. So I put away really good clothes until the next one grows into them. Then by the time I pull them out, the younger one has grown past them."

The family is composed of six boys and five girls. Most of them named for someone "to give the child a special identification."

HARD TO NAME

But the hardest to name was the baby, five weeks old Joan.

"So many people had a hand in naming her. It used to be just my husband and me, but now. In fact, Frank (the four-year-old, tenth child in the family) was upset when we didn't name the baby David, as we'd planned."

"I told him that we couldn't name her David because she was a girl."

Frank's answer to that was, after a close inspection of the newest arrival, "How can it be a girl with a boy's head?"

MEALTIME SPLIT

The family splits up for mealtime with the younger children eating in the breakfast room "where manners don't have to be quite as good."

"One thing about 11 children—you have the Joneses on all sides of you," added Mrs. Egan with a grin. "They send their two children to camp each summer. It would be impossible for us to send the five or six camp-aged ones every year. So we take turns."

One of the most frequent visitors to the Egan household is the milkman.

"He comes every other day and fills up the refrigerator with milk. I guess it's about 10 quarts."

The milk prices are her biggest complaint in the large family picture.

CHEAPER IN CHICAGO

"When we lived in Chicago, the milk companies were competitive and would come around offering us as large consumers special prices. It seems a crime to me to have the price of a commodity so necessary for children set up so high."

The Egan's compactly built home is deceptively large with ample room for their big family in the number of bedrooms and baths.

"I had no certain number of children in mind when we were married 19 years ago," said Mrs. Egan. "I would have been unhappy with just a few, though."

"How do I manage? That comes with experience. In fact, when I had four, and they were all young, I thought that was more than anyone could cope with. When I had five, things began to fall in line. And now, with 11, life is easier."

"Big families are no different from small ones—just magnify the number."

But having domestic help is a must with a large family.

SERVANTS HELP

"Without Maybelle, our cook, and Marion, life would be far from serene. They take the extra burdens off the camel's back. Without them, I probably wouldn't be singing the praises of a big family at all."

"It's not important to bring just numbers into the world, but to do the best you can to raise them to be worth something," added Mrs. Egan.

Mr. Egan is in an appropriate line, head of a wholesale grocery firm, which works in well with a family of 13.

A next door neighbor views living by a family of 13 as "wonderful."

Even a rainy day doesn't pose a problem to Mrs. Egan.

"What do I do on a rainy day? I go out for lunch."

TOBE SAYS

White Gloves Are a Must!

A last-minute check of your summer accessories should certainly include your glove box. And if you do not have a whole wardrobe of little white shortie gloves — a type for every kind of costume — you see about getting these right away. For the little wrist-length shortie, preferably those that fasten closely at the wrist with one button, is perfect to wear with short-sleeved summer dresses, both for day time and evening.

Let's see just how many different little shorties you need. I estimate either four or five: an airy crocheted or knit glove for casual wear; either a double woven cotton or a double woven nylon shortie for daytime or both; two late day and evening shorties — one in stretch satin and one in fine glace kid. And all white, of course.

Georgia Likes Donkey Jobs

"The most remarkable things are always happening to me," said Georgia Simmons, one of America's most durable and bewitching character actresses. "Every time I get to feeling like Ada in 'Tobacco Road'—you know, 'If I had a stylish dress to be buried in I'd lay right down here and die'—something perfectly remarkable happens."

Allowing for the fact that nearly everything in this world is fascinating to a woman like Georgia, I was forced to admit that she does have adventures.

For instance, she is an ex-schoolteacher currently being seen in the movie "The Fiend Who Walked the West." She played Ada in "Tobacco Road" in theaters all over the land. She was the witch in "The Rose Tattoo." She was in the television play "Dark of Night," recently did a three-weeks stint in "The Last Angry Man" and is giddily plotting to work her way around the world at the age of . . . "Well, say I'm old," suggested Georgia. "Old enough to be anybody's grandma. But don't put down any figures. Figures trap you."

In addition to these things Georgia has drunk gin for a living, taken pills, sweated, given herself dishpan hands, read to the blind, posed as a crazy woman for confession magazine art and served as baby-sitter, dog-sitter and African violet sitter.

"I really prefer children," she put in parenthetically. "But you can say this for violets—you don't have to dry them every few minutes, just wet them once a day."

All of these curious pursuits are what Georgia calls her "donkey jobs." "You know out West when they can't get where they want to go by regular means, they get a donkey. If I can't make a living acting, I get a donkey job."

The gin drinking job was a dilly. At intervals throughout the day Georgia consumed half a tumbler of gin—neat. A couple of hours later she had her stomach pumped out, all in the interest of science.

"I've forgotten what they wanted to know," she admitted. "But I learned that even with the gin syphoned out the intoxication lingered on. I was determined to remain a lady through the whole thing and keep in mind that I was simply doing a job. But some of the other members of the gin-drinking crew got rather more personal pleasure out of the assignment."

The sweating job was for the Army during the war and involved being bundled into a rubber suit. The dishpan hands stint was a soap powder company and posing for mean and crazy old ladies for the confession magazines is one of the donkeys that Georgia rides most regularly.

"Some actresses won't take these jobs," she said cheerfully. "They say they're dedicated to the theater. But I don't think it's dedicated to let the rent go unpaid. Besides my donkey jobs are fun. And I think they make me a better actress."

Georgia came home to attend the Rabun Gap Nacoochee school reunion. She once taught there but can't remember when. ("Ruth Ritchie says it was when she was 7 years old and she has five grandchildren now. Is that close enough?") She is visiting friends and trying to make up her mind about using her ticket to Jacksonville, which she bought out of no real desire to go to Jacksonville but because the fare from New York to the Florida city seemed so enticingly cheap.

As for having remarkable things happen to you, Georgia returned to the subject to say, "They happen to everybody. You can count on it. If you just don't panic. That's the point. Panic short circuits good things."

Miss Dian Sherry Udinsky Is Bride of Robert Clein

The chapel of the Ahavath Achim Synagogue formed the setting for the marriage of Miss Dian Sherry Udinsky, daughter of the Isadore Udinsky, to Robert Bernard Clein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max L. Clein, on Sunday afternoon.

Rabbi Harry H. Epstein read the marriage vows and Mr. and Mrs. Udinsky gave their daughter in marriage. The bride was attended by her cousin, Lillian Friedman of St. Augustine, as maid of honor and the bridegroom's cousin, Shirley Wolkin, as bridesmaid.

The bride's gown of Chantilly lace was embroidered in seed pearls and sequins, and her veil fell from a coronet of sequins. She carried a white Bible showered with white orchids and stephanotis.

A reception was held in Paradise Hall of the synagogue, with the bride's cousin, Sherry Lynn Benzell of Savannah, keeping the bride's book.

The couple left for a Florida honeymoon. Upon their return they will reside at the Howell House.

NUT CAKE AKIN TO GERMAN'S CHOCOLATE
Coconut Twigs Form a Rich, Delicious Topping Which Is Toasted

German Chocolate Cake Adds Filberts

By VIRGINIA DYSARD KEZIAH
Constitution Food Editor

In the wake of that most popular of cakes, the German chocolate cake, have come other delicious cakes, cookies and sauces, which use the same type of chocolate. In many cases these heirloom recipes have stood the test of time, but in some cases they are hot out of the test oven.

One of the tried and true cakes is this wonderful chocolate filbert cake. It is moist and rich with a delicate chocolate flavor. Nuts, finely chopped add a delightful crunchiness. Filberts are recommended, but pecans may be substituted. Brown sugar, butter and flaked coconut are spread on the finished cake which is then placed under the broiler just long enough for the coconut to toast a delicate brown and the sugar and butter to bubble deliciously.

For one of these special summer parties that celebrates an engagement, a marriage, a graduation or just a coming together of friends, this nut chocolate cake is highly recommended. It's running a close second to the German's chocolate cake.

Miss Savitt Is Bride of Mr. Asher

Mr. and Mrs. William Savitt of West Hartford, Conn., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Rosalie Spring Savitt, to Thomas Joseph Asher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Asher of Atlanta.

The ceremony took place in the garden at the Savitt home, with Rabbi Morris Silverman officiating.

Mr. Savitt gave his daughter in marriage, and she was attended by her sister, Deborah, as maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Nancy Ahearn, Debra Goldard, Diana Fisher, and Nancy Sind of West Hartford.

Norman Asher of New York was his brother's best man, and in the role of usher were Raymond Epstein of Great Neck, N.Y., John Hirsch and James Montag of Atlanta and Richard Wimmer of New York City.

Children in the wedding procession were Barbara Savitt as flower girl and David Savitt as page.

Following the wedding reception held in the garden, Mr. Asher and his bride left for a honeymoon in Nassau. They will reside at 3514 Roswell Rd., Atlanta.

The bridegroom, grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Elsas and Mr. and Mrs. Julius Asher of Atlanta, is a graduate of Cornell. He is associated with Goodbody and Company here.

NUT CHOCOLATE CAKE
1 pkg. (1/4 lb.) sweet cooking chocolate
2 3/4 cups cake flour
1/2 tsp. salt
2 tsps. double-acting baking powder
1 cup butter
1 1/2 cups sugar
4 egg yolks, unbeaten
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup milk
1 cup finely chopped filberts or pecans
4 egg whites
Coconut topping

Melt chocolate over hot water, then cool. Combine sifted flour, baking powder, and salt and sift together.

Cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating well after each. Blend in melted chocolate and vanilla. Add flour mixture alternately with milk, beginning and ending with flour mixture. Blend in nuts. Beat egg whites until stiff peaks will form and fold into batter.

Pour into a well-greased and floured 10-inch tube pan or a 13x9x2-inch pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 1 hour and 15 minutes to 1 hour and 20 minutes for 10-inch tube pan, or 50 to 55 minutes for 13x9x2-inch pan. Cool 15 minutes; then remove from pan onto rack. Cover with Coconut Topping and place under broiler until frosting is lightly browned and bubbly.

COCONUT TOPPING: Melt 1/4 cup butter and add 1 cup brown sugar, 1 1/2 cups (about) flaked coconut and 1/2 cup light cream. Mix well. Let stand about 5 minutes before spreading on cake.

WEDS EX-ATLANTAN
Mrs. William Liller

Miss Hazen Is Wed To Mr. Liller

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll K. Liller of 3626 Rembrandt Rd. went to Cambridge, Mass., to attend the marriage on Saturday of their son, William Liller of Ann Arbor, Mich., to Miss Martha L. Hazen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Hazen of Belmont, Mass.

The ceremony took place in the chapel of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, with a reception following at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Mrs. John G. Bowen of Lakeville, Conn., and Mr. Liller served as best man for his son.

The ushers included the bride's two brothers, Stanley S. Hazen of Hilton, N.Y., and Nathan L. Hazen of Glen Oaks, N.Y., and her brother-in-law, John G. Bowen.

The bride, whose father is dean of the graduate school at M.I.T., was graduated from Mt. Holyoke and received her Ph.D. in astronomy from the University of Michigan.

Mr. Liller, also an astronomer, is a graduate of Harvard and holds a doctorate from the University of Michigan where he is now an assistant professor.

WED TO ATLANTAN
Mrs. T. J. Asher

Miss Walton Is Wed to Mr. Duggan

At an afternoon ceremony held Saturday at the First Baptist Church of Rome, Marian Ann Walton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Stokes Walton of that city, was married to Douglas Martin Duggan, son of the F. F. Duggans of Atlanta.

The Rev. W. Forrest Lanier was the officiating minister. The service was followed by a reception held in the reception rooms of the church with Mr. and Mrs. Walton as hosts.

Mrs. Carroll D. Smith III of Nashville, Tenn., was the bride's matron of honor, and Mrs. W. A. DuPre Jr. of Rome, Dana Reese of Columbus, Curtis Anne Swords and Marie Martin of Atlanta were her bridesmaids.

Barry E. Duggan of Atlanta was his brother's best man, and ushers-groomsmen were Ralph P. Lebkuecher Jr. of Florence, Ala., A. C. Bailey of Augusta, Aubrey M. Bush of Macon and Carroll D. Smith III of Nashville.

The bride's gown of satin and Alencon lace was embroidered in pearls and sequins and designed with a chapel train.

Mrs. David Bothwell of Atlanta kept the bride's book.

Kaminski, Dancer Vows Said

Miss Camille Kaminski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Kaminski of Chicago, was married on Saturday at an early mass held at St. Denis Catholic Church in Athens, Greece, to Guilford B. Dancer Jr., son of Mrs. Alcen Wilkin McTyre and G. B. Dancer Sr., of Atlanta.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Moffard of Samsun, Turkey, entertained at a reception for 50 guests.

The bride took her vows in a ballerina-length gown of Chantilly lace and a brief veil which was attached to a lace crown studded with pearls. She carried a white satin prayer book topped with a cluster of white orchids.

Mrs. Dancer was graduated from Kelley High School in Chicago where she first met her husband.

Mr. Dancer attended South Georgia College and afterward he served in the Marine Corps. He was graduated last August from Greer Technical Institute in Chicago, and is at present electrical power plant supervisor with the Tumpance Co., Inc., in Samsun, Turkey.

After a wedding trip in Greece and Turkey, the couple will reside in Samsun.

I am a GEISHA GIRL

My name is Sadako Uemura. I was trained from childhood for the sole purpose of entertaining men. Romance is taboo, yet I have a husband-less family. I must be impassive, despite the most degrading insults. Many geishas can be owned by a patron for his exclusive enjoyment. In the current issue of McCall's, I write my autobiography. Perhaps it will surprise you. Perhaps it will shatter your conception of what geisha girls really do. I've just written what I know is true in the new July McCall's.

DEAR GEORGE:

My husband keeps trying to fix things around the house and it's busting my budget: Is there any manual, or reference, which might help him?

—MRS. T. X.

DEAR MRS. T.:

Yes, indeed. The Boy Scout Manual, many distraught wives have found, is ideal in this respect. Actually, it won't really make a skilled handyman out of your husband, but may give him new interests, i.e.: An Otto Ithlin of Bark, Ark., formerly given to ripping up the plumbing at the slightest leak, now goes outside and sits quietly tying knots for hours on end. One self-styled do-it-yourself man out of Racine—a real fathead, according to his wife's good-natured description—took up pathfinding instead of making coffee tables, and often isn't seen around the house for weeks on end. Good luck, Mrs. T.

John Calhoun To Discuss

Baroque Period

John Calhoun, interior decorator, will discuss the baroque period of interior design on Wednesday, July 1, at 10:30 a.m. in the members room of the Atlanta Art Assn.

The affair will be the second in the series of informal discussions of important periods of design to members of the Hostess Committee of the McBurney Art Memorial of the association.

Textiles and accessories appropriate to the baroque period will be used as illustrations.

Sand Cakes, Pies Take Kitchen Tools

Small-fry delight: Keep an extra set of metal or brightly-colored plastic measuring spoons on hand in the kitchen? Youngsters who are sand-box age will think they're great for measuring out "sand cakes and pies."

TOOTHACHE Guaranteed. Ask for new fast acting jelly called ORA-JEL. If you can't get to the dentist, the best thing for you is ORA-JEL. Pain vanishes in seconds.

Then introduce him to the SHARIAN-HOST do-it-yourself method of carpet cleaning. HOST is a moist compound that cleans without wetting, lifts crushed pile up! You sprinkle HOST on the carpet—work back and forth with brush—vacuum over—and the carpet is ready for traffic again. HOST Compound and rental of brush is just $12.95 (something all husbands will appreciate). Cleans from 300 to 400 square feet of carpet.

SHARIAN delivers the HOST KIT, picks up the brush next day. CALL SHARIAN, DRake 7-3146 for completely safe and satisfactory HOST for home use. It's so easy you'll want to help your husband use it!

HEALTH and HAPPINESS

By DR. SARA JORDAN

Don't Punish Loyal Stomach

Once the stomach has received the masticated food mixed with saliva it starts the real work of getting the meats, cheese, milk, and all the other proteins digested and of putting the whole meal into a form which will be welcomed by the small intestine.

That form is a semi-liquid mass called chyme. What has transformed it? The stomach has both a muscular and a chemical apparatus to work hard at their job.

The muscular wall holds and churns and pushes while the strong hydrochloric acid penetrates and transforms that meal into a new form. Thus the elaborate process is begun which makes your steak, potatoes, and everything else you eat usable by the body cells.

The strong hydrochloric acid, secreted by the glandular cells in the lining of the stomach is a very potent chemical. The velvety tissue which lines the stomach has all the appearance of being soft and easily injured. Yet, unless the stomach is too badly abused, that powerful chemical leaves the lining of the stomach unharmed. This is one of the many wonders of the body which have confounded medical men for centuries.

After we have put a meal into our stomachs, we should be able to turn our thoughts to other projects and let digestion take its course. But, unfortunately, that is not always the case. Deliberately giving the stomach too much to work on, or food hard to digest, will cause even this long-suffering, hard-working organ to revolt.

The revolt may result in just temporary indigestion and there are few who do not know what that means. Something more serious may happen, however, with continued abuse. The lining of the stomach may become inflamed and swollen, a condition called gastritis. Or a small area in the wall of the stomach may become eroded, causing a chronic condition known as ulcer. We have plenty of evidence pointing to the fact that in such cases this powerful acid plays a big part.

Your management of what you put into that stomach of yours merits good thinking and respect, even reverence!

(Dr. Jordan cannot undertake to answer personal questions by mail. However, questions of general interest relating to health will be discussed from time to time in this column.)

GOREN on BRIDGE

By CHARLES H. GOREN

Q. 1—As South you hold:

♠ A 7 ♥ A 9 7 5 4 ♦ A J 8 4 3 ♣ 8

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	2 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Three spades. With this attractive distribution you should give partner one more chance. A single raise at this point is a mild effort inasmuch as partner could have passed two diamonds.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

♠ K 10 9 4 ♥ Q J 4 ♦ J 9 8 ♠ A 8 3

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Five clubs. Your one-over-one response and mere preference for partner's first bid suit have shown nothing above minimum strength. In fact you have an above average hand facing a game-forcing jump, and there could easily be a slam. You should show the ace of clubs.

Q. 3—Both vulnerable, and as South you hold:

♠ K Q 8 ♥ 10 8 4 2 ♦ 10 7 5 ♠ K J 7

The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
Pass	1 NT	Pass	Pass
2 ♠	?	?	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Double. You have a good prospect of winning at least three and possibly four tricks so that a penalty bid of at least 200 is in view, with a chance for more.

Q. 4—Both vulnerable and as South you hold:

♠ 6 2 ♥ A 7 ♦ A J 10 8 5 ♠ K Q 3

The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	Double
1 ♠	?	?	?

What do you bid now?

A.—While you have sufficient excess values to justify a free rebid, you should refrain from doing so merely to give your partner the courtesy of the road. He may be able to punish one spade, the rescue bid. If so, you must not get in his way.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

♥ A K 9 8 4 ♦ A 8 4 2 ♠ A J 9 5

The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	Double	2 ♠
1 ♠	?	?	3 ♥

What do you bid now?

A.—Inasmuch as your partner made a free bid of three hearts you should be mildly interested in a slam. This intention should be flashed by means of a cue bid of three spades. Observe that we would not consider the hand quite strong enough for an immediate cue bid, but now that partner has spoken voluntarily the hand shapes up to be much more impressive.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♠ A 4 ♥ K Q 8 4 ♦ A K 10 2 ♠ 9 6 3

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
2 NT	Pass	?	?

What do you bid now?

A.—At least five hearts, with six hearts an acceptable second choice. Valued at hearts, your hand contains 17 points and partner has promised a holding of 16 in high cards.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

♠ A K J 10 ♥ A K ♦ A Q 8 4 2 ♠ J 8

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	2 NT	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—This is a close choice, and in the special circumstances we are inclined to favor a rather unusual bid, namely three hearts. If partner chooses to go on to four that may be the best contract. However, we would accept as correct a direct raise to three no trump.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

♠ 5 6 5 ♦ Q 10 9 8 7 6 4 2 ♠ K 7 5

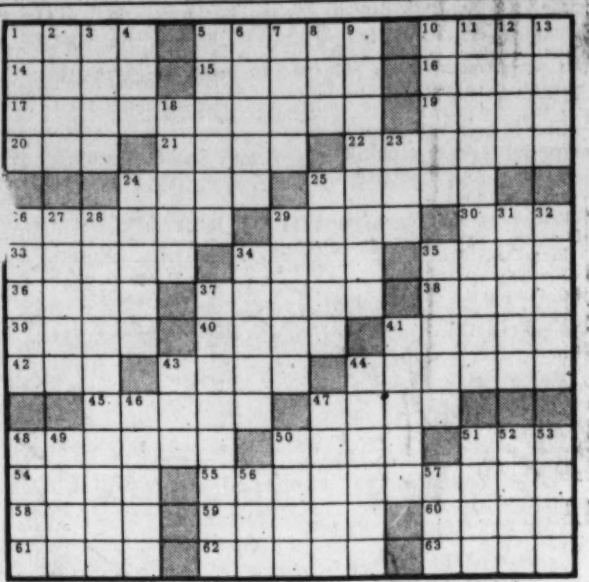

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 NT	Pass	?

What do you bid?

A.—It is difficult to lay down rules for hands containing eight-card suits. It is equally difficult to estimate their trick-taking possibility. It amounts to sheer guesswork and our guess is in favor of a five diamond bid on the theory that there is more to be gained than lost by taking this action.

RHYME A DAY

By OLLIE REEVES

"Be sure to include a hamper of these ready-to-eat snacks when the family picnic..."

What is a picnic anyway? ... It's some place where you spend the day ... Uncomfortable, ill at ease ... Among mosquitoes, gnats and bees ... Where you are blistered by the sun ... And kill yourself while having fun.

What happens to you while you're there? ... You sit on a collapsing chair ... Or battle with a howling bunch ... Of children for your share of lunch ... What happens to the children who ... Find many foolish things to do? ... A couple of them over-eat ... Another's stricken with the heat ... Another one falls from a tree ... And skins both elbows and a knee. ...

What happens to your wife who brought ... A book along because she thought ... She'd read and rest a little bit ... But never even opened it.

What happens when you're homeward bound? ... You hear a loud, explosive sound ... And all the kids start screaming that ... A tire has gone completely flat. ...

The day has been a total loss ... The family is tired and cross ... And that's the way a picnic ends ... Making enemies of friends.

Your Stars Today

The least movement is of importance to all nature. The entire ocean is affected by a pebble.

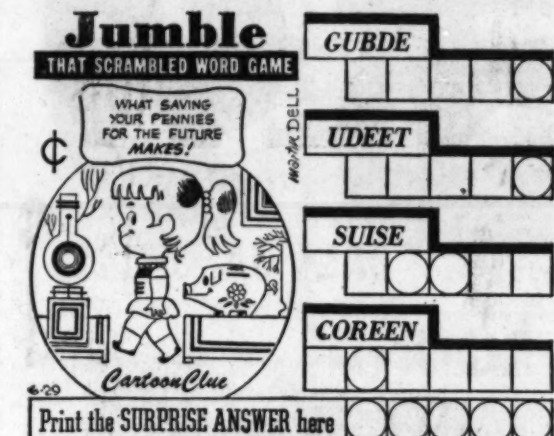

Daily Guide—The planets do not make significant aspects every day, naturally, and as they move away from degrees in space where they were in mathematical patterns to each other some release of tension can be expected.

However, the planets may be moving toward other vital positions, so we must never assume that little details we do on routine days are unimportant. The next few days can be routine, but we are moving toward a new moon on the weekend. Clear up unfinished business in the next few days so you can get a fresh start next week.

Keep to practical affairs today.

Idled Seaman Saves Daughter

MESSINA, Sicily, (UPI)—Seaman Giuseppe Zappala, without work in Italy's long maritime strike, was on his way to the beach for a swim Saturday when a passerby shouted that a child was in danger of drowning. The 40-year-old seaman leaped in fully clothed and brought the child safe to shore. Only when he reached the child did he realize it was his own daughter, 3-year-old Flavia.

Leopoldi Dies; Wrote Austrian Popular Music

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Herman Leopoldi, 70, famed here and abroad as a composer and performer of popular music, died Sunday of a heart attack.

He appeared in Vienna cafes as a youth with his musician father. For years he and his brother Ferdinand ran one of Vienna's best-known night clubs and Herman composed 350 popular songs.

In 1938, the Nazis confined him to Dachau and Buchenwald concentration camps for several months, but in 1939 he reached the United States. In 1947, he returned to Vienna.

The Hollywood Scene

Natalie and Bob
Reject Movie

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

North American Newspaper Alliance

Sheilah Graham

HOLLYWOOD—Natalie Wood and Robert Wagner, who will work together in movies only if the roles and not the publicity warrant their teaming, were asked to do "Parrish." "We would have," Bob told me, "if the other roles had been taken by Clark Gable and Laurence Olivier. We don't want people to say about any picture, 'You know, it has that married couple.' . . . Their three lawsuits against fan magazines have ended—two retractions and one settlement.

From Suzy Parker, who knows whereof she speaks: "No one can be more elegant than a man. And all he needs is five suits. With this small wardrobe he can go anywhere and be accepted anywhere."

More on Peter Ustinov's active career. He has completed a novel, "The Unfeeling." The 80,000-to-90,000 words deal with the end of the war and the period just after its finish.

Brigitte Bardot is allergic to telephones and won't answer the ring, not even for her mother. When producers want Brigitte they must write or telegraph. Incidentally, Brig is refusing to pose for any more undraped stuff. She'll go dramatic, or bust.

Robert Horton has succumbed to the flying bug—bought a Piper Comanche plane, to use on his present personal-appearance tour, flying from town to town.

Sandra Church, young star of "Gypsy," the Jule Styne Broadway hit, will be in Jule's new musical next year. Sandra is a steady twosome these nights with New York attorney Charles Lipton.

Diana Lynn recently drove up to a television station, wouldn't listen when the guard tried to steer her away from a row of upstanding huge nails, punctured all four of her auto tires, then insisted that the TV company officials get her new ones. P.S.—They did.

Mamie Van Doren couldn't make the Berlin Film Festival this year. And, she's glad. "When I was at the Venice festival a year ago," Mamie told me, "I felt ill and had to go to the ladies' room. Five men photographers and two women reporters walked right into the room behind me. I burst into tears and threw a pillow at them. Next day, my photograph was in the papers crying, with the explanation that I had liver trouble!"

Diana Dors has starred in 50 films, but likes only one, "Yield to the Night." For her night-club act in this country, Diana will be paid $250,000.

Inger Stevens has been under contract to Paramount for three years, but she has yet to make a movie for them. Even "The Buccaneers" made on the Paramount lot was a loan-out to the De Mille company. But Inger isn't complaining—"not after my role in 'The World, the Flesh and the Devil.'"

Sixty-one-years-young Fredric March is cutting down on the work and upping the time allotted to travel and pleasure. With their two children married, Fred and wife Florence Eldridge feel they have earned the right to relax.

Carolyn Jones' performance in "A Hole in the Head" jumped her picture price to $75,000. She still owes Hal Wallis two movies, and he wants to sign her for two more after the end of their current pact.

On the Cover

That's Dennis Morgan in caricature form on this week's cover, drawn by New York artist Wachsteter in surrealist style. Dennis is the star of a new television mystery series, "21 Beacon Street," which makes its debut Thursday at 9:30 p.m. on Channel 2, replacing The Ford Show for the summer. Dennis is the mastermind of a unique investigative organization, with offices at the address that gives the show its name. Joanna Barnes, Brian Kelly and Jim Maloney costar in the series. The first episode, called "The Rub Out," has Beacon Street arranging a murder in which nobody gets hurt.

Newport Jazz Festival on Radio

Jazz—and plenty of it—will be available to radio listeners this week when CBS presents four hour-long broadcasts emanating from Rhode Island's annual Newport Jazz Festival.

Mitch Miller

The opening program will be presented on WAGA radio, at 9:05 p.m. Thursday. Three other broadcasts will follow on successive evenings at the same time.

Mitch Miller, host of the series, will introduce the performing groups and offer commentary on the festival.

On the opening broadcast, George Shearing, the progressive jazz pianist who made his reputation with a small combo, will introduce his new 15-piece orchestra in its debut.

The Four Freshmen will present a group of blues and ballads in the four-part-harmony singing style that has made them popular on recordings and in personal appearances.

Bubbling: Cindy

By Dick Gray

There's a great volume of bubbling verbiage coming out of Hollywood these days about a new, young, blonde-type movie starlet named Cindy Robbins—the "champagne girl," according to the studio press releases.

Here's what one champagne-happy studio scribe penned:

"Champagne is the word for Hollywood's newest, exciting personality, sultry Cindy Robbins, who makes her motion picture debut opposite Rock Hudson, Jean Simmons, Claude Rains and Dorothy McGuire in the Universal-International-Vintage production 'This Earth Is Mine,' the saga of a great wine-making family.

"Blessed with a unique blonde hair-coloring, Cindy further added luster to her golden locks when she reported to work on 'This Earth Is Mine' and began daily treatments washing her hair with champagne under the supervision of U-I makeup chief Bud Westmore, who says, 'It's done wonders for her hair.'

"Continuing her champagne motif, Cindy, who loves animals, purchased a toy poodle named Chu-Chu, Champagne-colored, of course, she wears champagne-colored clothes whenever appropriate and owns a champagne-colored convertible. . . ."

With that effervescent tribute by a champagne-struck publicity man ringing in your ears, how could you pass up a chance to talk to Cindy Robbins, on tour in New York, on the telephone?

You get Cindy on the phone. She has a small-girl's voice—high and musical. Sounds very friendly. You ask her about the champagne gimmick. She chuckles in a bubbling way and replies, in her small-girl's voice:

"Actually, it sort of happens to be true. My hair's the color of champagne. Just for the heck of it, we even washed it once in champagne."

CINDY AND ROCK HUDSON ON SET

HERE'S CINDY . . . 5 FEET, 2 INCHES TALL, BLUE EYES, BLONDE

Very honest, this Cindy Robbins. You ask about the "champagne-colored toy poodle named Chu-Chu."

"Oh, yes," she bubbles enthusiastically. "Actually, I have two poodles—one standard and one toy—named Shou-Shou and Caprice. Shou-Shou is white. I guess you could call him champagne-colored. It's pretty close to white."

Then Cindy goes on to explain that Rock Hudson conceived the idea for her "champagne motif."

"We were talking one day on the set," she explained, "and he said, 'I think it'd be a good idea to call you the champagne girl.'"

"Why?" you inquire.

"Oh, because I bubbled, I guess."

"Do you bubble?" you ask her.

"I guess so. Also, I like the color very much. I'm wearing a champagne-colored dress right now while I'm talking to you. Anyway, Rock said they had the 'it girl' and everything, and now it was time somebody else did it. So I'm the 'champagne girl.'"

By now, you're fascinated by this straightforward bundle of honesty, with her small-girl's voice and bubbling laugh. You tell her she has a bubbling laugh.

"I'm a little self-conscious about that," she says, laughing a bubbling laugh.

Self-conscious, an actress?

"I have my moments . . . I guess I'm bashful sometimes."

"What caused this—unhappy home life or something?" you ask, jokingly.

"Oh, no!" she gushes. "I have the happiest home life in the world. . . . I have four sisters (ages 7, 8, 11, 17) . . . I even live with my family in Glendale."

More Robbins honesty. The press release said she has her own "small apartment near Malibu." You ask about her future plans.

"I really can't say right now . . . I'm looking forward to making another picture . . . I won't know for a while."

Cindy has been in a Broadway musical, "By the Beautiful Sea." Does she prefer the stage to motion pictures?

"Making pictures . . . that's my favorite," she says avidly. "I like taking my time on something . . . like in this movie, we filmed for three months. You get time to experiment and change things. If you don't like the way you do something, you try it another way."

Cindy waxed more enthusiastic as she expressed her devotion to acting. By now it was obvious where the champagne idea came from. She really does bubble.

"I still go to class twice a week," she said earnestly. "I really want to be a good actress . . . I really do."

Back to movies versus stage. Cindy said she thinks people work much harder in movies.

"You try everything possible to make the role successful. It's most rewarding."

More rewarding than the stage?

"Yes, I think so. Of course, it depends on what play and what picture. . . . But there's not enough time on the stage."

Cindy explained how she began her stage career as a dancer.

"My mother had a dancing school in the South . . . in Pascagoula, Mississippi . . . it's on the Gulf. I started dancing when I was five."

"This Earth Is Mine" is scheduled to open Friday at the Fox.

I helped entertain the troops during the war. My mother took shows to the camps near there. I was only five, but I went along."

The family moved to California (Glendale) when Cindy was eight. She continued dancing.

"Have you heard of Ken Murray's Blackouts? I danced in them. I was 11. I was a Baby Lovely. I tap-danced. It was really hard work. We did 10 shows a week, three on Sunday."

The press release listed Cindy's favorite sports as "riding, surfing and skin-diving." How about that?

"Oh, no," Cindy bubbled with super-enthusiasm. "It's tennis. It's the greatest game in the world. I still take four lessons a week when I'm at home. I just played in a tournament. I play mixed doubles. We were runners-up. It was the T. and Crumpet Tournament in Beverly Hills. T. for tennis, you know? I had to leave on this tour before they awarded the trophies. Mine will be waiting for me when I get back."

By now Cindy Robbins—the "champagne girl"—was living up to her name in earnest. She does bubble—when she laughs and when she talks about her great favorites . . . acting, Rock Hudson, her family, playing tennis.

Cindy's poodles may be white, and she may only have washed her hair in champagne once—for laughs—but she comes by the Champagne Girl title honestly. In fact, if there were enough bubbling Cindy Robbinses in the world, they might put champagne out of business.

MAURICE CHEVALIER AND DELIA SCALA
They Star in "My Seven Little Sins"

Pre-'Gigi' Chevalier's Back

In 1905 a hard-boiled little boy with a big grin and prominent lower lip was doing some song turns before an audience of Menilmontant workmen who were even tougher than he was. He got $2.40 a week and very little applause.

His name was Maurice Chevalier, his age was 12 and his greatest ambition was to earn a dollar a day.

Twenty-five years later he was in Hollywood making movies for Ernst Lubitsch, at a reported salary of $20,000. Those movies weren't too good, and Chevalier went away with not too much regret, although he had acquired a large female following in the United States.

Chevalier kept on making movies in his native France, of course, some of which managed to drift into American art houses before the Hollywood-inspired "Gigi" which brought him back to the attention of newer generations.

"My Seven Little Sins," one of those pre-"Gigi" films, is scheduled to open Thursday at the Fine Art Cinema. Made in France in the middle '50s—when Chevalier was in his middle 60s—the comedy concerns a wealthy count who has a fling with seven young dancing girls.

The picture is in Ferranicol, with English subtitles. The costars include Paolo Stoppa, Gaby Basset and Delia Scala. Chevalier sings, too.

Norma's Homesick

By MARJORY RUTHERFORD

A raven-haired, green-eyed beauty from South Africa who looks strikingly like a slightly older charmer—Egypt's Queen Nefretiti—displayed her classic profile and other charms in Atlanta and sighed:

"This part of the United States makes me homesick."

Norma Marler, far from her native Bulawayo, South Rhodesia, likes Atlanta food, flowers, and hot weather.

"We eat corn-on-the-cob, too," she smiled. "Only we call it 'mealies.' Your beautiful, bright colored blossoms make me think of home. And this weather—just right!"

Miss Marler was in town last week to beat the drums for her first motion picture, "The Mummy," a Universal-International release scheduled for a world premiere at the Paramount here Thursday.

"The Mummy," made in England, will be shown as a double feature with another new Universal-International picture, "The Curse of the Undead."

Twenty-two-year-old Norma won her part in "The Mummy" on the basis of her resemblance to the ancient Egyptian empress who reigned in 1300 B.C.

Norma Marler Queen Nefretiti

The picture, starring Peter Cuashing and Christopher Lee, who scored in "Horror of Dracula," and French actress Yvonne Furneaux, tells the weird tale of an Egyptian curse.

Miss Marler came to London, her first trip away from home, and now has a five-year film contract there. She "hopes to do a Hollywood picture soon" and has already received from New York television offers.

She was accompanied to Atlanta by Britisher Andrew Low, authority of Egyptology, who served as technical adviser for "The Mummy." Both are in this country for the first time. They started a nationwide tour in Atlanta "because you're having the premiere" and were to appear in Augusta, Columbus, and other Georgia cities this week.

The pair aren't the only pluggers for the horror film. An authentic copy of a famed Egyptian sarcophagus containing a mummy insured by Lloyds of London for $1,000,000 makes the tour, too.

Low, who worked on many of Alec Guinness' films, including "Kind Hearts and Coronets" and "The Lavender Hill Mob," is spending part of his Georgia visit trying out "typical Southern food."

Gorgeous Norma Marler is more interested in Southern people—"especially the gallant gentlemen I've heard so much about," she purred.

Any Southern gentleman worthy of the name would return the compliment. The statuesque brunette—five feet seven—has 36-24-36 statistics and wears clinging chiffon gowns especially styled for her by famed designer Worth.

Her conversation is spiced

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, Monday, June 29, 1939 5-A with fascinating items about her South Africa heritage. Her home is near the Zanzibar ruins where it is said the Queen of Sheba once went with her slave trains in search of gold.

"You Atlantians will see my first film before my homefolk," Norma said. "I hope you like it—and me."

Erie Fleming, Michael Pate, and Kathleen Crawley star in "The Curse of the Undead," the other horror movie on the Paramount's twin bill.

Dazed by Husband's Death

Joan Continues With 2 Careers

Motion picture star Joan Crawford, who visited Atlanta last winter shortly before the sudden death of her husband, will make one of her rare television appearances Sunday — starring in "And One Was Loyal," a drama of suspense in the Malayan jungle on General Electric Theater, 9 p.m., Channel 5.

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

North American Newspaper Alliance

HOLLYWOOD — Joan Crawford's two poodles greeted me when I stopped at her dressing room for lunch on the 20th Century-Fox lot, where she is now filming "The Best of Everything."

"Only four scenes," said Joan, "but I'd rather do four scenes in what I think will be a fine picture than do every scene in a mediocre film."

The poodles are father and daughter—"Masterpiece," given Joan by her late husband, soft-drink tycoon Alfred Steele, and "Lady." Joan has always had a couple of dogs around. Pupschen, the dachshund, was almost as famous as his mistress. He mated with Leibschen, and begat many children. Then came Cliquot and several other poodles with names all beginning with C.

"Alfred used to say," Joan remarked, "that, if he had a second life, all he asked was to come back as Joan Crawford's poodle." Joan is still dazed by the suddenness of her husband's death, but carries on with her career and her job as director of his business.

"I will commute to Hollywood," she told me, "and live in our lovely apartment in New York. I remember when Jean Negulesco dined with us he said, 'I adore your home but loathe your paintings.' He said we should get Modiglianis and such, which get more valuable every year. But Alfred and I bought pictures we liked. And personally, I'll take diamonds. Alfred used to say, 'What do you do when you marry a girl with diamonds but add to them.'"

Joan showed me her husband's last presents to her—a beautiful diamond-encrusted watch with the tiny timepiece looking like the center of a scintillating rose, and a diamond and turquoise necklace, fit for a queen's ransom.

"I'm glad to be back before the camera," continued Miss Crawford, slimmer by 10 pounds since I last saw her in New York, and she was thin then. "But the minute I finish 'The Best of Everything' I report back to Pepsi-Cola, to go where they need me most. A plant is opening in Madrid, but I may miss it if my role keeps me in Hollywood for five weeks. I promised to stay four, and one extra if necessary.

"Alfred and I had planned to go to the Orient for his company, and I will go for both of us, 10 days in Honolulu, 10 in Manila, two weeks in Hong Kong, two weeks in Tokyo, then Australia. Alfred said, 'Pack two bikinis and we'll have a two-week vacation in Fiji.' I hope the company will let me go. I know all the problems. I know more about every square foot of the plants than who is in what picture.

"I finished up my tour in this country before starting this film—for two reasons: we'd planned it, and Alfred wanted me to go. I flew alone for the first time and after leaving Kansas City we ran into a tornado and lightning and things looked bad. I wasn't afraid because Alfred had explained all about thunderheads—we flew 200,000 miles in three years and before that I had never flown."

Later Joan went to the captain and said, "We were in trouble, weren't we?"

He replied, "Yes, but we didn't want you to know because we knew you were flying for the first time without your husband."

Just before Steele died—Joan found him on the floor by his bedside on a Sunday morning—he had ordered a new plane for the company which Joan decorated in colors of aquamarine, turquoise and brown. "Will you take up piloting?" I asked the woman for whom everything has always been possible.

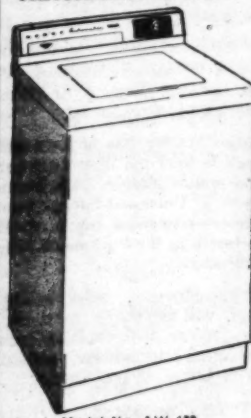

"Don't be silly," she replied, and I was glad to learn there was something she was afraid of.

Her husband always introduced her as "My wife, Joan Crawford." When asked why, he explained: "She earned the name."

"He wanted me to continue with my acting career, but I didn't want to leave him," said Joan. "When the scripts kept coming, I'd say no. Now I shall do everything Alfred wanted me to do—work at my acting career, and work for his company."

Veronica Lake Here

Summer theater in the round will return to Atlanta Friday, with the opening of the new Arena Playhouse at 226½ Peachtree St., downtown.

Veronica Lake—who rocked the country in the forties with her peekaboo hair styling—will star in the opening offering, "Fair Game," the smash comedy which ran on Broadway during the 1957-58 season.

Co-starring with Miss Lake will be Philip Sterling and John Hallow. They arrived in town over the weekend and will rehearse all week for the Friday curtain-raiser. From Atlanta, the play will take to the road with the same cast, going next to Chicago. Stanley Phillips is director.

"Fair Game" will run for 10 performances—nightly except Sunday and two Saturday matinees—concluding Saturday night, July 11. Evening curtains are at 8:30. Matinees begin at 2:30 p.m. Tickets are $3, $2.50 and $2.

After the first production, nine more are scheduled for the Arena Playhouse this summer. They will open Tuesday nights and run through Sunday nights, with matinees on Saturdays.

Following the initial offering, a resident stock company will be formed, under the leadership of Canadian Director Raphael Kelly. Stars will be imported for each week's production.

Scheduled to open July 14 is "Personal Appearance," starring the French bombshell Corinne Calvet.

Arena Playhouse producer is Joe Kennedy, science teacher at Brown High School, who introduced summer theater in the round to Atlanta audiences in 1956 and repeated in 1957, productions being staged at the Women's Club Auditorium.

After a lapse of the 1958 summer season, Kennedy is trying a more ambitious dramatic venture with the downtown Arena Playhouse—planning 10 weeks of legitimate theater, scheduled to end September 14. He expresses plans to bring to Atlanta "outstanding Broadway personalities" and to present "theater of the finest caliber."

"Fair Game"—the story of a fair young lady who epitomizes sex to all she meets—contains a goodly amount of sophisticated-type comedy, many moments of romance and a lot of the theme that "true love never runs smooth." It won acclaim from New York's tough critics.

Veronica Lake began her career at age 17, starring in the movie "I Wanted Wings." She went on to star in such films as "This Gun for Hire," "Sullivan's Travels," "I Married a Witch" and "So Proudly We Hail." She starred in the national stage company of "Peter Pan," and has done stock versions of such plays as "Voice of the Turtle," "I Am a Camera," "Remains to Be Seen" and "Gramercy Ghost."

Philip Sterling made his Broadway debut in 1955 as the Russian composer Boroff in "Silk Stockings." The Philadelphia native also has been on Broadway in "Interlock" with Celeste Holm, and has appeared on more than 200 television programs.

John Hallow appeared on Broadway in "Visit to a Small Planet" and "Anastasia." A native New Yorker, he has toured with the Barter Theater, played with many civic theaters and been on TV in such shows as Studio One, Suspense, Big Town and Big Story.

Shaggy Dog Story

On the set of the Bob Cummings show an actress came by with a shaggy English sheepdog at the end of a leash. A cast member commented, "That dog has so much hair in its face, it needs a seeing-eye man!"

Vet Treats Jackass After Car Crash

Henry Morgan of "I've Got a Secret" reports on an accident in which the driver of the car needed medical attention. A patrolman on the scene said the only doctor nearby was a veterinarian. The aching driver replied, "That's just fine because I'm a jackass to think I could have done 60 on those tires!"

THEY'RE SCARED—These two unidentified Japanese film actors cringe in fear as they come face to face with a space monster in "The Mystery," Japanese science fiction film which opens Thursday at Loew's. The film tries to answer the question: "What will the first outer-space aliens to land on earth look like?" According to this wide-screen color film, a Toho production with dubbed in English dialogue, they won't look like your Aunt Minnie from Dubuque.

'Lady Godiva,' Horse Here

Club-goers this week won't be seeing pink elephants unless they over-drink, but they will be seeing heres — one horse, at least — if they wander into the Harem Club.

Lady Godiva (Frances Du Bay in real life) will open at the Harem tonight, complete with scanty costumes and a real live trained palomino horse named Melody Lady.

The horse reportedly has a repertoire of 30 tricks.

A new trio—the Tunemixers—opens tonight at the Monte Carlo Lounge in the Riviera Motel. The three musicians are the Dale Sisters—Ruth on clarinet and vibes and Ester on bass and cocktail drums—and Med Barthlow, guitarist. The group hails from Fort Lauderdale.

A new five-piece Dixieland band opens tonight at the Bayou—to supplement the swinging Dixie music of Ralph Mayes and his boys, who just have completed their 12th month in the room. Dave Hudson and his Bourbon Streeters are new faces. Dixieland now reigns continuous.

The Henry Grady Paradise Room begins its no-change summer schedule tonight with Bill Grassick and his orchestra sharing the stand with the Two Tones duo.

Betty McHugh is featured vocalist with the Grassick band, and plays cocktail drums on the side. Dinner music is from 7 to 8 p.m., with dancing from 9 p.m. on.

OTHER OPENINGS: Herkie Styles, Jean Shannon and the Brooks Brothers, Stan West and Tammy at the Domino . . . Dick Broderick, emcee, and the exotic Cindy Lou at the Harem Club. . . . Freddie Martel's new revue, Frosted Frolics, will open Tuesday at the Biltmore's Empire Room.

Best-Dressed Dina

DINA MERRILL AND JERRY LEWIS

How do America's best-dressed women take care of their wardrobe?

"Just like everybody else," says blonde and beautiful Dina Merrill, screen actress who recently was named one of America's ten best-dressed women. "I have no special formula or secret. I do what all women do; I send my clothes out to the cleaners when necessary."

Dina appears with Jerry Lewis and Diana Spencer in Hal Wallis' "Don't Give Up the Ship," which opens Friday at the Roxy Theater. Off screen, she lives in a New York apartment with her husband, Stanley Rumbough Jr., president of the American Totalizer Co. She doesn't have a maid and takes care of her clothing herself.

"I don't have an extremely large wardrobe and use only one large closet," she reveals. "I prefer double hanging space wherever possible so I can hang clothes on top and bottom. I don't have extra racks or shelves as I don't need them."

Some of Dina's outfits are custom-tailored but many of them are bought right off the clothing racks in several New York and Hollywood stores.

"Luis Estevez, Sophie Gimbel and Hattie Carnegie are my favorite designers," she says.

"I buy some of my clothes from them. But I also buy quite a few outfits from stores like Saks and Magnin's. Some of my favorite pieces are those I purchased in stores."

Ironically, Dina's wardrobe consists of one outfit—a WAVE uniform—in "Don't Give Up the Ship."

Musical Fireworks

Musical fireworks are in store for a Fourth of July audience in Chastain Memorial Park.

Ampitheater Saturday, with Albert Coleman presenting the fifth of the summer's Atlanta Pops Concerts.

The Naval Aviation Cadet Choir, organized 10 years ago to sing for Sunday services at the Pensacola Naval Air Station Chapel, will be featured guest artists of the concert.

The Cadets have appeared on TV with such personalities as Ed Sullivan, Dave Garraway, Perry Como, Tennessee Ernie Ford, Steve Allen and Arthur Godfrey, and have appeared at the Miss America Pageant and the White House Christmas party. They will appear in full dress whites and will provide as many musical fireworks as an unarmed group of servicemen can.

Highlight of the concert will be the finale—a group of all-time favorite selections featuring the stirring "Ballad for Americans" with orchestra, choir and featured soloist Peter Harrower, winner of three scholarship awards from the Atlanta Music Club and two successive Fulbright awards.

"Ballad" was written by poet John LaTouche and musician Earl Robinson. When this musical historical narrative had its radio debut some years ago, an audience of 600 stamped, shouted and applauded for two minutes while the show was on the air and 15 more minutes after it went off.

Four young guest soloists, chosen from Georgia talent at the Pops auditions early in May, will share the stage with the cadets and orchestra.

Sharon Michael, 16, is a singer of popular songs. Edward Gregory recently was stationed with the Army at Fort McPherson and has since sung with bands in this area. Stanley Yerlow, 16-year-old Henry Grady High School student, is a pianist. Beverly Ann Coleman, 18-year-old singer, is recipient of a music scholarship to Shorter College.

The concerts—as always—are free and open to the public. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. Listening to music, says one loyal concertgoer, is much safer than shooting off firecrackers.

Shirley to Do Krasna Film

Shirley MacLaine will star in a picture to be written by Norman Krasna and produced by Steve Parker in Japan, it was announced by Jack Karp, Paramount studio head.

The untitled production will be a joint venture by Paramount and Sachiko Productions, a Japanese company. It will start in September, 1960. The picture will be filmed in Technicolor and will be made on a major scale on location in Japan with interiors to be shot in Hollywood, on the Paramount lot.

Krasna, an Academy Award winner, will write both the original story and screenplay. His recent writing credits include "Indiscreet," "Bundle of Joy" and "The Ambassador's Daughter."

Miss MacLaine recently completed a starring role in Hal Wallis' "Career" and Parker has been producing pictures in Japan for the last few years.

Beer Soup in the Dinning Room?

By BILL POPE

This looks like the culinary scoop of the year, and it will be passed on here before it gets buried in a mass of irrelevant detail.

The dish is beer soup, and we are told that it combines the best features of both. It is a combination of beef stock and premium beer (not ale, for heavens sake) put on slow boil with assorted vegetables, salt and pepper.

The recipe, in a general form, was passed on by Charlie Johns, a local chef, who got it from a New Orleans man. Charlie plans, after a round of carefully controlled experiments, to introduce the stuff at his place next winter, when its heart-cheering warmth will be more appreciated.

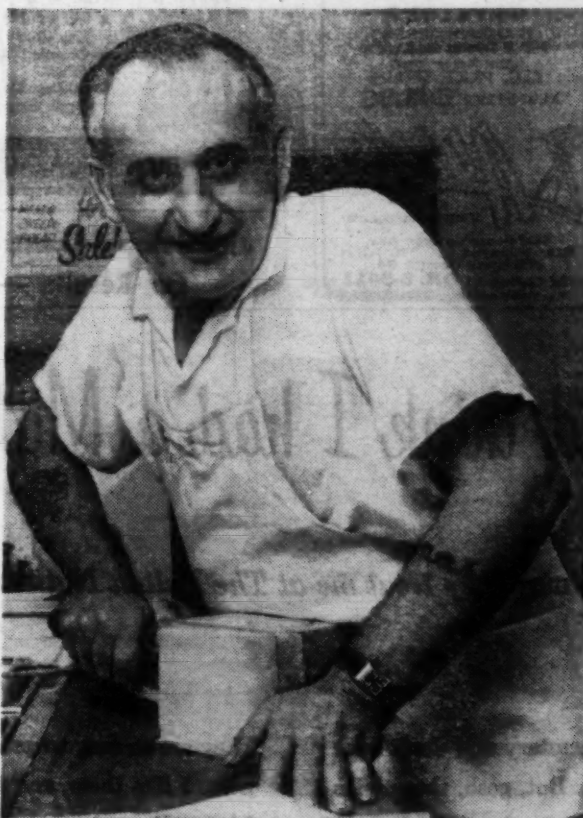

Charlie, as everybody in the uptown area knows, is the owner of a little hole-in-the-wall on Journal Way variously known as Charlie's Place, Charlie's Sandwich Bar—usually just plain Charlie's.

OPEN A YEAR

Charlie opened the place about a year ago, after serving apprenticeship for 15 years in Vic's, a now-defunct but once popular beer-drinking and eating place on Broad street. Nearly all of Vic's patrons have stayed faithful to Charlie, and why not? Charlie has the noble demeanor of a man who would inspire loyalty (he looks sort of like Lee J. Cobb with a hangerover). And the man can cook.

Charlie's specialties are cold dishes—sandwiches, potato salad, cold meat cuts and the like. Moreover, he can concoct just about anything within reason if given a little advance notice.

CHARLIE JOHNS SLICES CHEESE

His Place Becoming Atlanta Landmark

Charlie's during all hours. It is a favorite eating place for bank presidents, store executives and newspaper brass, as well as those of more humble status. Charlie cackles loudly when he recalls having to help some pretty ritzy citizens out the door and into cabs after an overdose of giggle soup. He won't mention names, however, and that is why they like to come back.

POOL SHARK

Charlie himself is a native of Savannah. Before entering the restaurant business, he was successively a traveling pool shark ("I made a fortune") hopping from Tennessee to Alabama and Kentucky, a professional boxer (light-heavyweight) and a steelworker, until he broke his leg on the job.

He boxed around in the Tennessee-Kentucky circuit during the late 1920's under the management of Tony Award. "Boxing was no good in those days," he recalls. "You'd go eight rounds and get 10 bucks."

One day in 1941 Charlie drifted into Vic's place and the owner, Max Muldower, gave him a job with the dishes. Soon Charlie had graduated to the steam table and to the preparation of food.

GOOD SHOW

"It was a heck of a show," says Charlie of those wartime days in Vic's. Occasionally he would get mad at Muldower and quit, "but Mac always called me back after a while." If he really had a bad temper in those days, Charlie has undoubtedly mellowed.

He had long given up the pool racket, because his wife wouldn't stand for it. They later separated ("She left me 'cause I wouldn't go home nights").

Charlie's hours at his own place are from 6 a.m. "until I can get the beer drinkers out." He prides himself on the fact that "I can make any damn kind of salad," including cole slaw with bananas. His best sellers are chef salad and baked ham, pastrami and salami sandwiches, in that order. He estimates that his revenue is derived about evenly from food and beer.

DINNING ROOM

Charlie's place is big enough to hold a dozen or so tables, plus a long counter with stools that can accommodate about six people. The main dining room ("dinning room," as the sign puts it) has a high ceiling, which Charlie plans to lower, leaving space for a balcony for the customer overflow. Facilities for serving draught beer are in the cards, too, Charlie says.

As it is, the main attraction of the "dinning room" is an enormous color painting of Custer's Last Stand, courtesy of a famous brewing company. We'd hate to see that one go.

Mirrors Used To Aid Director In Sub Movie

There's only one way to direct movie scenes in the cramped quarters of a submarine, according to director Blake Edwards.

Do it with mirrors.

For the Cary Grant-Tony Curtis comedy, "Operation Petticoat," in which the major portion of the story takes place in the crowded interior of a sub, Edwards devised a "Rube Goldberg" contraption composed of seven mirrors that allow him to view a scene being filmed in spite of the fact that he cannot be present in the compartment where the actors will be emoting.

Edwards' gadget is easily adjusted so he can see around corners or from any angle or any spot within twelve feet of the camera lens.

"Submarines depend on periscopes," he pointed out, "and movie directors working on submarines have to do the same."

The King and Eye

Yul Brynner, who had to have a minor eye operation after completing his role as Solomon in "Solomon and Sheba," still had enough sense of humor left to wisecrack to friends.

"I wonder," Brynner grinned to them, "if the headlines will read, THE KING AND EYE OPERATION?"

TCHAIKOWSKY: Swan Lake and Sleeping Beauty ballet suites. Virtuoso Symphony of London, conducted by Arthur Winograd. Audio Fidelity (Stereo).

Here are two more musical gems especially suited to stereo, and Audio Fidelity has done them up well. Unfortunately, it is impossible to get all of the lilting melodies of Swan Lake on one side of a record, so a number of the dances necessarily are omitted. However, the suite is well composed and includes such outstanding passages as "The Dance of the Swans from Act II," in which the woodwinds emerge with such clarity that you think they're in your living room. These old favorites are a valuable addition to anybody's new stereo collection.—DG

SCRUBBIN' & PICKIN': Original Washboard Band. RCA Victor.

Lovers of Dixie rhythm get a rare treat in this first recording of the "Washboards" from Georgia's Golden Isles. The quartet takes such simple "instruments" as scrubboards and frying pans and makes sounds that might come from a 10-man band, and vocals on several of the tunes add an extra Southern flavor. It's hard to sit still when the "Washboards" swing into Bugle Call Rag, Mama Don't Allow, Who Threw the Whiskey in the Well, The Glory of Love, and Tiger Rag. There are seven other selections that make good sound for good listening.

In the House That Music Built conducted by Arthur Winograd. Audio Fidelity (Stereo).

Another of the much publicized First Component series, this music is well calculated to show off the extra-special engineering lavished on the recording. There are resounding percussion sections and tinkling highs, silky strings and ringing horns in such popular overtures as "Mignon," "Bartered Bride" and, of course, Rossini's "Barber of Seville," the best known and best performed of the half dozen.—GRG.

"You'd think I had a Million..."

(the way they treat me at The Fulton National!)

"I'm a secretary and don't have much to save. But, gosh, those folks at The Fulton National Bank treat me like I had a million dollars on deposit!

"They make me feel so important. I like the tellers' 'Good morning, Miss Johnson'. I like the friendly nod and greeting of several of the staff.

They are so easy to get acquainted with. I like them, and they like me. I know I'm welcome and that my business is appreciated. I wish I had a million dollars to spare. I'd put it all in The Friendly Fulton."

We want you to try Friendly Fulton Style Banking. Please come in, won't you?
